Why!

This issue has been delayed owing to the uncertainty of continuing this work caused first, by the great falling off during the past year in the number of subscribers and second by the failure of many others to pay their subscriptions. It is exceedingly regretted that it seemed necessary to send to so many the statement of their account and much more that any one should have felt grieved thereat. But printers' bills must be met. The usual rules of newspapers and periodicals concerning subscriptions (money sent in letters at senders' risk, papers sent until ordered discontinued and arrearages paid, etc., etc.) must govern our little paper. In every case a receipt, usually a postal card, is sent on the receipt of a subscription and if not received subscribers should make inquiry of this office. Subscribers not having already paid in advance will kindly remember that their subscriptions for Vol VII are due on the receipt of this issue. For in spite of the large shortage in last year's accounts it has been decided to make one more attempt to keep our family paper going. If ten who are interested in this work will pledge themselves to take five copies each (to be sent to their own address or to the address of such persons as they may designate,) the publisher will be responsible for the remaining two-thirds of the expense. Three of the ten have already been secured and feeling sure that the others will come forward this issue has been printed. May this hope not be in vain! The names of the three are

1. Mrs. S. A. Maxwell, N. Y. City.
2. Henry J. Lewis, Louisville, Ky.
3. Geo. Harlan Lewis, N. Y. City.

It has been stated several times that this was no money making affair but an attempt, perhaps not always the wisest or best, to secure and preserve the records of all of our name and eventually to arrange this mass of tradition, bits of history, and interesting fragments into one valuable whole. Of the work this involves, never has a truer word been written than was written more than two hundred years ago by Anthony a Wood "A painfull work it is I'll assure you, and more than difficult, wherein what toyle hath been taken, as no man thinketh, so no man believeth, but he hath made the triall."

It is intended in the future as in the past to publish both original contributions and also interesting excerpts from other works many of which are not accessible to most of our readers. Of course original records are the more valuable and are given the preference, yet the others often make valuable the original. Of the many examples which might be given Book XLIV is a good one. Had not the records of this William of Roxbury as revised by the author of "In Memoriam" been reprinted, the full and complete records now appearing in that "Book" would have lacked much of their value. So the demands of our subscribers in Virginia and Kentucky (and they form a large proportion of the whole) that the printed but fragmentary records of these Lewis families be corrected, dates and other details be added, is being met as fast as possible. To some extent the number of readers a "Book" has as shown by the subscription list must govern the amount of space devoted to the records of that "Book." Keeping these things in mind, it is the aim to make each issue a readable paper for the general reader as well as a valuable work of reference for the lover of genealogy.

Already there is on hand a large number of interesting chapters for the various Books now on the list and a still larger amount of fragments which as fast as possible are being placed or are appearing as new books. There seems to be a good probability that Volume VII will contain much of the history of the early Lewises of the Hudson valley whose history and records have long been neglected. For here too Lewises played an important part in the growth of the country and their names are constantly cropping out in its history. Lewises have been leaders everywhere whether among the early settlers of Connecticut or Virginia, whether among the Puritans of Massachusetts or the Friends of Pennsylvania, whether among the pioneers of Kentucky and Missouri or of New York and Ohio.

Of the many expressions of good will received concerning our work there is room for but two. The New England Historical and Genealogical Register in a recent review of LEWISIANA states that "this is a good form for collecting and preserving the history of a family, and is deserving of the patronage of those of the name or blood." A subscriber, Mrs. Amelia R. Stevens of Syracuse, N. Y. sends some New Year's greetings which may appropriately serve for the opening number of Vol. VII:

TO CARLL A. LEWIS.

Let me give you a welcome for "ninety-six,"
And a hope that its future may bear
New aims, new hopes, new interests too,
In which LEWISIANA may share.

We're scatterrd widely o'er the earth,
Who claim our birthright in it;
We know but few whose names appear
Each month within its limit.

But names can bind, and hearts endear,
To know of each the other,
And thus to know where lives are cast,
And call each one a brother.

The very meaning of our name
Inspires our aims and longing;
"True courage" has a loyal sound,
And glad we claim belonging.

Old Time is hast'ning fast away,
The olden ranks are thinning.
But youthful hearts shall carry on
The work of your beginning;

So strike a note of melody,
Whether years be few or many,
And may this bring to you good cheer
And success to LEWISIANA.

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used; as b. for born; d. died; m. married; m. (1) first wife; dau. daughter; unm. not married; v. p. see page, etc. Instead of repeating the name of a place in the same paragraph initials only are frequently given.

CHAPTER XCVII.

EZEKIEL LEWIS.

He was chosen constable in 1705, overseer of the poor in 1708 and 1709, and assessor in 1713,—all of which he declined to accept, but was an assessor in 1707. He acted, however, on several important committees, and visited officially the public schools. He was one of the selectmen of Boston from 1724 to 1726 inclusive, and was representative from 1723 to 1731 inclusive. In 1720 and 1721, he was one of a committee to draw up instructions for the representatives, and was especially prominent in those cases at law where citizens encroached upon the town's rights. He was elected a member of his Majesty's council in 1731 and served to 1736; was elected again in 1738 and served until 1741; was re-elected in 1742, and was continued as councillor from 1747 to 1752 inclusive. He was appointed special justice of the Superior Court, June 22, 1733, having been commissioned a justice of the peace, Dec. 29, 1731.

One of the most pleasant duties, doubtless, was serving on the committee of Sept. 13, 1742, to draw up a vote of thanks to Peter Faneuil, Esq., for his generous gift to the town, and then presenting the same to Mr. Faneuil. Later, Sept. 17, he was one of the committee to receive, in behalf of the town, and duly acknowledge in a 'vote of thanks," "His Majesty's Picture, to be hung up in Faneuil Hall."

After a busy life, helpful in public interests for more than half a century, he died at Boston, Aug. 14, 1755, aged eighty years.

He was first sergeant of the Artillery Company in 1708.

CHAPTER LXVII.

By John Calvin Lewis, Louisville, Ky.

Mary Starling Payne.

Another talented and worthy descendant of the Warner Hall (Gen. Robt.) Lewis family is gone. Mrs. Mary Starling Payne died at her home near Hopkinsville, Ky., on April 29th. She was a daughter of the late Judge Starling, and grand-daughter of John Lewis, the eldest son of Colonel Fielding Lewis, by his first wife, Catharine Washington.

Mrs. Payne was a Daughter of the Revolution and an honorary member of the Kentucky Sons of the Revolution at Louisville.

Devoted to her Lewis blood, she had for nearly twenty years been engaged in writing upon the subject nearest her heart, the genealogy of the Lewis family branch of which she was a lineal descendant, hoping to some day reduce the fruits of her labors to history. Mary Starling Payne was a noble woman, endowed with good memory and ability, and will be missed by her numerous kindred and admirers.

Hopkinsville, Ky., May 2.—(Special.)—Mrs. Mary Starling Payne, widely known through this section of the State, died at her home, near this city, yesterday, after a lingering illness of cancer, aged sixty-five years. She was a daughter of the late Col. Samuel M. Starling, a prominent officer in the Federal army. She was married nearly half a century ago to William R. Payne on his death-bed, and never married again.

Mrs. Mary Starling Payne died suddenly Friday morning May 1st. She was a lady of unusual intelligence and was loved and admired by a large circle of friends for her many excellent traits of character.

[Of all our fellow workers who have during the past year ceased from their labors and gone to their reward—and they are many—the loss of none will be more keenly felt than that of Mrs. Mary Starling Payne. Valuable as have been her contributions to the pages of Lewisiana, still more helpful has she been in her letters with suggestions and advice by means of which records have been corrected, new dates obtained, new friends gained for the cause in which she was so much interested. It is to be sincerely hoped that her death will not deprive readers of Lewisiana from enjoying the results of her work in Lewis genealogy.—Ed.]

FRANCIS LEWIS, Signer of the Declaration of Independence.

CHAPTER XVI.

From Barrett's Old Merchants of New York.

The New York Merchants seem to know so little of their own history, or of the great names that have adorned commerce in this city, that no steps have been taken to honor any one of them. Boston boasts with pride of her John Hancock, whose bold signature stands prominent among the signers of the Declaration of Independence. So, too, might New York boast of her merchant, Francis Lewis, whose name stands on that same glorious list; he, too, was a merchant, and from New York City. Why, in any other city in the world, this man would have been deified. He did an act that will stand through all recorded time, when the names of Governors and Presidents shall be forgotten, or only dug up out of the musty records of history, but when the names of all the signers of that Declaration will be honored in every house; children in the streets where they belonged will be taught to lisp their names. They will descend through all time to an era when 2000 millions of population are counted in 200 States of the Union, and in remote ages a thousand generations hence, men will point to the golden scroll on which are recorded the signers of the Declaration of Independence. They will be more honored than the bold Barons of England who extorted Magna Charta from the bad King John.

If the Chamber of Commerce knew what was for its glory in the coming times, it would raise any amount required, and erect on the Battery a monument 600 feet high, with a statue on its top, that could be seen far out to sea by the mariner, growing larger and larger as he came towards the city. This statue should be of Francis Lewis, one of the Merchants of New York, who signed the Declaration of Independence, and consequently is ranked as much a peer above all merchants in this city as Hancock is in Boston.

How proudly the commercial city of the continent could point to this statue looming up in grandeur almost in the clouds, and visible at a great distance far out to sea. The traveler coming from a distant land, as he approached our shores, would ask in awe, "What is that?" How proud would be the reply: "It is the statue of the merchant of a city who signed the Declaration of Independence that made us a free people, and paved the way for our city becoming in grandeur the greatest on this continent, and perhaps in the world: his name was Francis Lewis." It would be a monument to after ages, that there had been a political genius among the ancient merchants of New York, and they were not always the uninfluential class of the present day, without political importance in the country or nation.

It would be a proud thing to do. It would be a still juster thing to do. Here was a great merchant in his day, who sacrificed all to the times and events in which he lived, and whose name sha and will stand forever while this country exists. He was the merchant of this city who signed the great document. This country will produce a million of governors, justices of the peace and Presidents of the United States. She can never produce but one Francis Lewis, signer of the Declaration of Independence—for millions of years will not bring forth such another eventful period as 1776.

Book LIV.

EVAN LEWIS, Wales to Penn., 1682.

CHAPTER XII.

Taken from a Woman of the Century being 1470 biog. sketches accompanied by portraits of leading American Women. P Lewis, Miss Graceanna, naturalist, born on a farm belonging to her parents, John and Esther Lewis, of West Vincent township, near Kimberton, Chester county, Pa. Aug. 3, 1821. Both parents were descended from the Quakers. Her father was the fifth in descent from Henry Lewis, of Narberth, Pembrokeshire, Wales, who came to this country about the beginning of 1682 and settled in what is now Delaware County, at first in Uplands, now Chester, and later in Haverford, with a winter residence in the city of Philadelphia. He was one of the friends and companions of William Penn, and was a man of education and influence.

A number of his descendants have been among the educators of their generation. On his mother's side, through the Meredith family of Radnorshire, Wales, he was the ninth in descent from David Vaughan who lived about the time of the discovery of America. In accordance with a mode peculiarly Welsh, his son took the name of William Evan, his son that of Hugh Meredith. This Hugh was a Cavallier, and with him the name of Meredith was retained for that of the family.

His son, Simon, born 1663, was among the early colonists of Penn., and settled in West Vincent, purchasing a tract of land held in the family until recently. Here the five children of John and Esther Lewis were born. Her mother was the oldest child of Bartholomew Fussel, Sr., and Rebecca Bond Fussell his wife. The former was a minister in the Society of Friends and was of English descent. The latter was of mingled English, French and Hollandish blood. The father of Graceanna died, leaving a wife and four daughters. Graceanna was then, not three years old. Before her marriage the mother had been a successful teacher, at first of her own brothers and sisters, and later of large and flourishing schools. She was eminently fitted for the task of educating her children. After twenty-four years of womanhood she died, leaving her oldest and youngest daughters with Graceanna in the home known as "Sunnyside." Graceanna has always been fond of natural history. She studied for the love of it in prosperity, and it became her consolation in sorrow. In the field of natural history her most important work has been the preparation of a "Chart of the Class of Birds," a "Chart of the Animal Kingdom," a "Chart of the Vegetable Kingdom," a "Chart of Geology, with special References to Palaeontology, Microscopic Studies, including frost crystals and the Plumage of Birds, as well as the lower forms of Animal and Vegetable Life, with studies in Forestry with original Paintings of Forest Leaves, "Water color Paintings of Wild Flowers," and illustrations for lectures on plants and animals. In 1869 she printed a small pamphlet, showing the relation of birds in the animal kingdom.

Clippings.

In connection with the death of Mrs. Riches, the Leeds Mercury publishes a a note from a journalist who on the death of Lord Beaconsfield interviewed her, and obtained some good stories about that statesman. One was about the courtship of Mr. Disraeli, as he then was, and Mrs. Wyndham Lewis. That lady was living near Cardiff, when through the window she saw Mr. Disraeli approaching, and ordered the servant to say she was not at home. When the servant descended to the hall Mr. Disraeli was hanging his light overcoat on a peg. "Mrs. Lewis, sir, is not at home," said the flurried maid. "I did not ask for Mrs. Lewis," was the calm statesmanlike reply. "But I don't know when she will be back," urged the maid. "Neither do I," philosophically replied he; "but I am going to wait till she does come back, so make me some tea." He did wait, he got his tea, and he married the widow.

44. Who was Elsie Lewis who m. 1800 or before in Mason co., Ky., probably, Philemon Hawkins.

45. Want to know of the brothers and sisters of Joseph Lewis, who married Nancy Faulkoner about 1793 and came from Virginia to Kentucky in 1818 with members of his wife's family and one Richard Vivian (or Vernon), who married Miss Davis. Joseph Lewis had a son, Burton R., who went as a substitute for his father into the army between 1812 and 1815. Tradition says he had two brothers, Charles and James. The latter settled near Tuscaloosa, Ala. Would also like the antecedents of Nancy Faulkoner, the wife of Joseph Lewis, who had brothers Thomas, Newman and Edward. My grandfather was nine years old at the time of the battle of Yorktown and remembered hearing the cannon on that occasion. J. W. L.

New Books.

In this issue four new Books are commenced some of which are undoubtedly parts of other Books. Let all who can in any way help, do so. It is hoped that all who have any records of these families will send them immediately to this office.

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used; as b. for born; d. died; m. married; m. (1) first wife; dau. daughter; unm. not married; v. p. see page, etc. Instead of repeating the name of a place in the same paragraph initials only are frequently given.

WILLIAM LEWIS, Farmington, Conn.

CHAPTER XCIX.

From a Panthorn Romance by Jessica Wolcott Allen in the Connecticut Quarterly.

Not far from Josiah's home was the more pretentious one of Mr. Lemuel Lewis. When he was forty-nine years old there were only six in the town whose property was listed higher than his, and two of them were Lewises. His Puritan grandfather came over in the ship Lion which also brought Gov. Winthrop's "sweet wife" Margaret. The family traced their descent from the French Louis, and if this genealogical record appears unnecessary to the thread of the story you will understand it better in the light of an apology for the "high feelin's" of Lemuel Lewis' oldest daughter Merab.

She was a beautiful girl and bore evidence of her gentle ancestry, her hair and eyes were said to be "black as coals," and, although quite tall, her hands and feet were very small and shapely.

The neighbors said that Josiah Root was more fond of watching those pretty hands as she sat at her spinning-wheel than he was of reading Dr. Todd's old manuscripts or of caring for the herbs he had in the garden. Even people waiting to give the young doctor their life's blood. were frequently obliged to "stay a bit" till Josiah could come around the back way from Merab's house.

After his return from the town meeting he no sooner had eaten his succotash, rye and Indian bread, with his "flip of beer," than he started over to talk with Merab of the "doin's."

She sat by her spinning-wheel and he looked at her pretty hands and then up into her face as she rose to greet him and, more impulsive than wise, he expressed the first thought which she inspired.

"I saw many a lass on the way to town this morn, Merab, but none methought looked fair as thee."

"I'll offer thee a stool, Josiah, but I never thought greatly of thy judgment or thy taste."

Ignoring the failure of his compliment he turned the subject saying, " 'Tis a bit too warm for comfort, think you not."

"I could guess that much of folks that have naught but their comfort to think on."

"Thy guessing served thee but poorly this time, Merab, for I never had more to think on. And beside, I came to tell thee something of my thoughts if there's time to hear me."

"Thy thoughts being so busy mayhap thy hands 'll take a turn some day," was the sarcastic reply. He winced but said calmly, "some day thou'll know that hours spent in study are not to be sneered at," and "Oh, no," she interrupted with a ringing laugh—"not if thy mother will furnish the porridge and cider."

A tinge of red swept over his pale face making his blue eyes look still deeper blue and his light hair more golden.

Jumping up from the stool he said quickly but without any sign of anger, "I wanted to talk in a sensible way, but it's without use in trying, and I'll bid you good day, Merab."

(to be concluded.)

FRANCIS LEWIS, Signer of the Declaration of Independence.

CHAPTER XVII.

By Julia L. Delafield in her Biography of Morgan Lewis.

With the exception of his parents and the family of his brother, Col. Lewis had no relations in America. After his marriage he was identified with the connections of his wife (Gertrude, one of the daughters of the Colonial Judge. Robert Livingston).  Colonel Lewis was married at Clermont in May, 1779. I have before me a letter from Mrs. Robert Livingston, addressed to her daughter, Catherine, (Mrs. Garretson) and dated 21st of May, giving an account of the wedding. She writes: "The young couple both looked charming, but Col. Lewis appeared to great advantage—his deportment suited to the solemn occasion, and to my girl tender and soothing beyond expression. Immediately after the ceremony he took her with one arm round her waist and led her up to me, and jointly had my blessing, and next to his father who catched him in his arms with transport and kissed him twice; he kissed Gitty and called her his dear daughter, and next followed a general salute." ***

Colonel Lewis had provided a phaeton and pair, then the fashionable equipage, and two well-mounted out-riders, to convey his bride across the country to Philadelphia in order to introduce her to his mother. Just before they arrived at their journey's end one of the attendants was impertinent and Colonel Lewis dismissed him. Grandmama, when she talked to us of her journey, ended by saying: "So, after having astonished the bushes and briers of New Jersey by my style, I had the mortification of entering the first town of America with only my husband, my phaeton and pair, and one attendant." On the 5th of February, 1780, my mother, the only child of Morgan Lewis and Gertrude Livingston, was born at Clermont. She was the first grandchild in the family of Judge Robert Livingston, and was named Margaret, after her grandmother, Margaret Beekman.

George Amasa Lewis (241) was of the old school. A strict observer of the Sabbath, always attending church. In early life he established the cash system in all his transactions, paying cash for everything and carried it out to his dying day, even paying his doctor up to the Saturday previous to his death. He was charitable, always giving in a way to allow the recipient to retain their self respect. He performed every office of a good citizen. Was a militiaman and fireman, and but 2 members of the first Engine Co. of Malden survived him. An exemplary Christian. No one ever heard him utter an oath. He never used liquor or tobacco. His weight was always full and measure running over. He was a farmer in early life, a last maker for years and in the wood and coal business for several years previous to 1875 when he fell from a tree, broke both collar bones and fractured 2 ribs at the age of 75, after which he gradually declined until his death in 1880. His wife died 3 days previous and was buried the day of his death. He arranged for her funeral and his own and after her burial, composed himself and departed peacefully, Mrs. Lewis was a very generous woman. tender hearted and with a great desire to do good. She was the friend of the orphan. She took and brought up 3 children not her own and others found a home with her and care in sickness and death, among them were several who died of consumption

That pamphlet was the result of long studies both in her home on the old farm and with the benefit of the library and the collection of the Academy of Natural Sciences, Philadelphia, under the direction of John Cassin, one of the leading ornithologists of the world. It was the germ of her later and improved charts. She was delighted to find that her views, which she had reached from general considerations, were sustained by anatomical research of the highest order.

In 1876 she exhibited in the Centennial Exposition, a wax model along with her chart of the Animal Kingdom. Here Prof. Huxley and other prominent naturalists found opportunity of examining her productions, and they were highly commended. Fortified by the encouragement of the best zoologists of England and America, her confidence was now assured, and she was ready to apply the same principles to the construction of a "Chart of the Vegetable Kingdom." By 1880, she had outlined the latter, and had completed it by 1885. Since then, all her charts are revised in accordance with the progress of scientific knowledge. Prof. Maria Mitchell, then of Vassar College, elected president of the fourth congress of the association for the Advancement of Women having urged Miss Lewis to prepare a scientific paper for reading before the meeting, the latter responded by choosing for her subject "The Development of the Animal Kingdom." Prof. Mitchell published that paper in pamphlet form, and circulated it widely amongst scientists. In 1870 Miss Lewis was elected a member of the Academy of Natural Sciences Philadelphia. She is, at present an honorary member of the Rochester Academy of Science, Rochester, N. Y., of the Philosophical Society of West Chester, Chester County, Pa., of the New Century Club of Philadelphia, of the Women's Anthropological Society of America, Washington, D. C. and recently, has been elected a life member of the Delaware County Institute of Science, in Media, where she now resides. Miss Lewis continues to lead a busy life, and in addition to her scientific studies, finds time for many diverse social duties. At home she is secretary of the Media Woman's Christian Temperance Union, secretary of the Delaware County Forestry Association, superintendent of scientific temperance instruction of the Delaware County Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and chief of the culturral department of the Media Flower Mission.

THOMAS LEWIS, Saco, Me., 1630.

CHAPTER II.

By Geo. Harlan Lewis, N. Y. City.

Thomas Lewis continued from p. 191 Vol. VI) lived at Winter Harbor. He witnessed Geo. Cleaves take possession in 1637 (June). Folsom says, "Thomas Lewis was a gentleman of more than ordinary standing." He was one of the Court of Commissioners convened Mar. 21, 1636. Rev. Richard Gibson, an Episcopal minister, married Mary Lewis, one of Mr. Lewis' daughters. (The Hercules was the ship she probably came over in.) Jany. 24, 1639, Gibson wrote Gov. Winthrop, he had lately married Mary, daughter of Mr. Thomas Lewis of Saco.

Rev. Richard Gibson sued John Boynton son of Richard, co partner of Thomas Lewis, for libel and afterward was tried for counseling revolt and left the country. Thomas Lewis is reported by Willis as dying without issue. He is reported (in error) as dying in Boston in 1635. N. E. Reg. Vol. 2 p 204, speaks of him as Gent and Agent in 1631. The Boynton family went to Newburyport to live after their house was burned down by the Indians in 1675.

George Cleaves encouraged Rev. R. Gibson to settle on Richmond's Island.

ALANSON LEWIS, New York, 1762.

CHAPTER I.

By Steadman Crandall, Moncton, N B. Canada.

Alanson (1) Lewis, the head of our branch of the Lewis family with his family of six children came to this place in 1783, and settled on a grant of land received from the crown. They being the first settlers the place (now on the outskirts of Moncton) was called, as it is known to-day, Lewisville. Before his removal here he married on Long Island Mary Merritt a sister of Nathaniel Merritt of New York. He and wife bothdied and were buried here, but all records are lost and all trace of graves and stones have disappeared.

It is family tradition that in some way we are connected with Francis Lewis, the Signer of the Declaration of Independance. This tradition so far as I have been able to sift it rests upon two reasons:

First:—because a branch of the Ludlow family removed here at the same time, descendants of which are still living in Frederictown, N. B.

Second:—my grandfather in his lifetime used to tell of the persons and incidents given in Book XL in the pages of Lewisiana. 6 ch. b.

2.I. Ichabod.

3.II. Felix.

5.IV. Elizabeth.

7.VI. Naomi.

Ichabod (2) his eldest son was about 21 years old when they landed here and the following is taken from the grave stone which is still in a good state of preservation:

"Ichabod Lewis born in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., left with the Loyalists in 1783. Died July 2, 1851, aged 89 years."

"His record was that of an honorable man."

FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY.

In Naugatuck, Ct. May 20, 1846, by Rev. A. K. Teele, Clark Murray Platt and Amelia Maria Lewis. Mr. and Mrs. Pratt celebrated their anniversary at their home 36 Buckingham-st., Waterbury, Ct.

Beloved, we bring our tribute
Of gratulation true,
For the beautiful years behind you,
For the brighter years in view,
For the care that has led you onward
And shielded from every harm;
For the love that now envelops
Your life in its golden charm:
The love of clustering children
Children's children dear;
The love of kindred spirits
That throng about you here:
The wealth of pure affection
That countless souls accord
On earth or in the glory
Of the ever-loving Lord.

Long, long may you together
Your happy way pursue,
Over a shining pathway,
Under an arch of blue.
The precious bond that holds you
But binding closer still
As hand in hand you bravely
Ascend the flower strewn hill.
Long, long remain the wisdom
And joy of clinging youth;
Long, long their inspiration
To purity and truth.
And as a peace unmeasured
From heart to heart shall flow;
You'll ever bless the nuptials
Of fifty years ago.

DIVORCED.

At Louisville, Ky., Mollie A. Lewis and Charles W. Lewis who were married May 11, 1886.

DEATHS.

In Hartford, Ct., June 23, 1896, drowned in Connecticut river, Leroy Lewis, ae. 12 years son Allan Lewis of 63 Governor st. [Another clipping states that he was son of Wm. O. Lewis of Parkville. Ed.]

In Germantown, Penn., July 15, 1896, Walter O. Lewis, 82 years old, for many years the manager of the Ship News office in New York. Mr. Lewis was born in Suffield, Conn. In his youth he became a telegraph operator in Hartford, and afterwards came to New York. When the telegraph line was built to Sandy Hook he leased it and managed it for many years. He inaugurated a system of telegraphy for reporting the arrival of vessels, which was of great assistance to the news service of that time. After the Western Union Company took possession of the Sandy Hook line, Mr. Lewis became connected with that company. He was the founder of the Ship News Office, which he managed from October, 1867, until he was taken seriously ill two years ago. He was one of the early advocates of the feasibility of the Atlantic cable, and a warm friend of Cyrus W. Field. When the Boston and New York Telegraph Company was organized, he was made one of the managers. Mr. Lewis' home was in South Orange, N. J., where his body was taken. He leaves two married daughters and a son, A. W. Lewis.

MEMORIAL.

From Louisville, Ky. Courier Journal.

Visitors at Cave Hill have noticed a monument which was recently erected to the late Henry J. Lewis, one of our most enterprising and worthy citizens, and which is attracting a great deal of admiration. It is certainly a beautiful one in its symmetrical proportions and substantial appearance.

Notes.

At the Conventions:—Alfred Henry Lewis has won his spurs by good work in the journalistic field. He is a brilliant and picturesque writer, now on the staff of the New York Journal. The Boston Herald secured his services at St. Louis during the Republican national convention and the telling dispatches he sent are sufficient evidence of truthful and interesting report... In Gen. Horace Porters' private car with a party of gentlemen returning from St. Louis and en route to Canton to tender their congratulations to the Hon. Wm. Mckinley on his nomination was Hon. Richard J. Lewis of New York.... When the state of Georgia was called, H. T. Lewis of that state came to the platform and put in nomination William J. Bryan of Nebraska, saying that if public office was a reward for public services no man merited such reward more than he. In the late political contests Mr.

Bryan stood among his peers, like Saul among the Israelites, head and shoulders above all the rest. "Honor him with the nomination," he said, "and you will do credit to the party and earn for yourselves the plaudits of your constituents and the thanks of prosperity."----Mr. Maloney, said: "In the name of the State of Washington, I place in nomination (for Vice President) her honored son, James Hamilton Lewis."

Our Ladies:—Mrs. John B. Lewis of Louisville, is the Vice President of the Women's Club of Louisville, and a member of the Press Committee for the biennial. Mrs. Lewis is also a member of the "Fortnightly of '76" and the Filson Club. She is a zealous club woman, and has few equals as a presiding officer----Mrs. Wm. Todd Helmuth, who was born in New York, and whose maiden name was Fannie I. Lewis, has achieved a widespread and enviable reputation by effective labor in those fields which reflect credit upon the moral force and ability of woman. The early married life of Dr. and Mrs. Helmuth in St. Louis was devoted to a labor which in great part looked to the ameliorating of the conditions and suffering of the poor. Mrs. Helmuth was a social favorite and one of the brilliant leaders in society, yet found time to devote to charitable work----When Dr. Helmuth was called to New York as professor of surgery in the Homeopathic College he found that there was practically no hospital or facilities for the students to prosecute clinical practice. It was due to plans suggested by Mrs. Helmuth for a free hospital that Gov. Flower Flower gave the building now known as "Flower" Hospital, and which was furnished and is maintained by an organization effected by Mrs. Helmuth and of which she is the President. This "Guild" as it is called, is composed of about eighty women who not only give money, but tender their services.------Mrs. Helmuth has charge of the domestic details of Helmuth House," anadmirable private hospital established by Dr. Helmuth in connection with his private practice. Such is the medical and surgical skill of Mrs. Helmuth that it is said, in cases of extreme emergency, her presence and prompt attention have saved life or limb. Her paper before the Sorosis descriptive of modern advances in surgical treatment attracted the attention of the most eminent surgeons of the day. As the wife of the head of a scientific medical society, Mrs. Helmuth entertains many persons, distinguished in letters and science, at her summer home at Bar Harbor, as well as at her resident house in New York----Besides being three times elected President of Sorosis, she is the presiding officer in the Woman's Guild, President of the mission, manager of the Magdalene Society, and is a member of and holds important positions in other active organizations.

Are There Ten?

In response to the appeal in July issue various answers have been returned. Some short and curt "A miserable little paper," some "I wish you success but I must abandon a sinking ship," some full of cheering and encouraging words from which the following bits are culled, although they lose much of their hearty ring of sincerity by this removal from the context of the letter. "I am an old pensioner with a small income but that I appreciate your work is evidenced by the fact that when unable to obtain missing back numbers, I, with your help, secured a loan of them, had them type written on suitable sized paper, and bound together, thus securing a complete work."—"I sincerely hope the publication of this most valuable of records of the Lewis family will not be abandoned. All of the name and blood should unite at once and so place this great work on such a footing that would ensure its existence as long as there is a Lewis or a descendant of a Lewis to read it."—"What lose my paper! Are Lewises all gone? This is the only comfort of family left me in my old age. Each month its inspiring words, its lofty aims and hopes, its fidelity to truth and all that is good and pure in life, its honest accounts of success and failure, its patriotism, its loyalty to our name, all bring back to my remembrance lessons learned years and years ago at the knees of my aged grandmother. And now must this too be taken from me? God forbid!"

The names of the "ten" so far secured are:

1. Mrs. S. A. Maxwell, New York City.
2. Henry J. Lewis, Louisville, Ky.
3. Geo. Harlan Lewis, New York City.
4. } S. C. Lewis, Franklin, Penn.
5. }
6. George Lewis, Providence, R. I.

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used; as b. for born; d. died; m. married; m. (1) first wife; dau. daughter; unm. not married; v. p. see page, etc. Instead of repeating the name of a place in the same paragraph initials only are frequently given.

CHAPTER C.

From a Panthorn Romance by Jessica Wolcott Allen in the Connecticut Quarterly, concluded from p. 20.

That evening about the Lewis fireside there was talk of the prospects of war Lemuel Lewis assured his wife that he should be on hand to "whip the red-coats if there was need of the Connecticut colonists helping out," and turning to Merab he said: "Daughter, if I were a comely lass like thee, I'd give Josiah Root more encouragement."

"Well, father, he talked with me this day of war, and I did encourage him to fight and not to take a garden full of herbs along instead of a blunderbuss."

"I was not meaning encouragement to fight, but since you mention it, is't not as worthy and needful to bind up the wounds of comrades as to inflict them?"

"I know not about that, but I know I like not his old pills and lancet and bleeding and I have set my heart on marrying a general, and have no use for a doctor one way nor another."

"Tut, tut, daughter, thou'rt none too good for a plain doctor, and it's a bad thing to have thy feelin's finer than the linen thou spinnest."

"That can't be said," quickly spoke up Martha, his wife. And turning to a bag which hung on the wall upon a large wooden peg, she passed him a beautiful linen handkerchief woven in red and white with Merab's name marked in a cross-stitch in one corner.

Her father pretended to examine it critically, but when he had done so, without comment he turned to his wife and said: "Martha, fill up the flip glass and I'll be off to bed."

Drs. Root and Wadsworth did not have long to wait for their country's call. The next year about one hundred men marched from that parish to New York, and although the record of their names has been lost, it is most probable that these two men were among the number.

It is supposed that Lemuel Lewis was one who went to Boston in response to a call for men after the battles of Lexington and Concord. After six months' service he was home again, but after a short stay he returned to the army.

Different soldiers from the parish brought word that Dr. Root was doing wonderfully well, and one soldier from Col. Douglass' regiment reported that his Colonel had said "Root is a born surgeon."

When the glad news of the surrender of Cornwallis reached Southington (for the Panthorn parish was now a town so named) all the soldiers were expected home, but Dr. Root did not appear.

He had enough to do to keep him busy and little to call him home, and it was a year later before his friends greeted his home coming.

After peace had been declared, the officers of the army were called together "to form a society to commemorate the success of the American Revolution and to perpetuate sentiments of patriotism, benevolence and brotherly love and the memory of hardships experienced in common."

The meeting was called at Baron Steuben's, on the Hudson, the Baron presiding as senior officer.

We have no proof that the Apothecary General (to which position Dr. Root had been promoted) was there, but he was one of the Council of War, and as such, was undoubtedly there with the other officers.

He became a member of the Society of the Cincinnati, and so brought home honors which even a proud girl bearing the name of Lewis could not overlook.

We should have liked to have been able to have listened to her condescending 'Yea," but as that pleasure was denied her grandchildren we must be content with the marriage record of good Parson Robinson, who records:

"April 8th, 1786. Josiah Root and Merab Lewis."

This record seems to prove that Annetje Hendrickson was mother of all of ch. of John (20) given on p. 183, Vol. VI.

In connection with the query whether Gerardus is son of Leonard (v. p. 7, Vol. VII.) I notice that a Johannes Hardenburg (Leonard's wife was a Hardenburg) was godfather or sponsor for Gerardus' son. In 1714 there was a Leonard Lewis living in Dutchess-co., N. Y., in whose family were 3 males from 16 to 60 years. 3 males under 16 years, 5 females from 16 to 60 years and 1 slave.

FRANCIS LEWIS, Signer of the Declaration of Independence.

CHAPTER XVIII.

By Julia L. Delafield in her Biographies of Francis and Morgan Lewis.

Col. Morgan Lewis, the second son of Francis Lewis, was first aide to Gates. His father had only to have remained passive (time of the Conway Cabal) and he would have been head of the staff of the commander-in-chief, a fine position for a spirited youth of twenty-three, who had already done good service at the battle of Saratoga, and who had distinguished himself in a night attack upon the Indians, of which he was the leader. New York may congratulate herself that her delegates were not influenced by personal considerations.

As soon as the war was ended, Colonel Lewis left the army. He was so impatient to resume the study of law * * * As sooon as he was admitted to the Bar, clients flocked around him. I have read a letter written by his father, in which he speaks with great satisfaction of the position his son had taken in his profession, and of the handsome income he already derived from it. * * * he followed his own inclination as well as that of Mrs. Lewis by making the country his principal home. He would have preferred establishing himself at Whitestone, his father's place on Long Island, but my grand-mother's family, to whom she was strongly attached, were settled on the Hudson. Her landed property was there. Something would always have been wanting to her happiness had she lived out of sight of the Kaatskill Mountains, consequently he took a long lease of the fine agricultural farm which Gen. Montgomery had left to his wife, now known as Grasmere. He was no sooner established in his new home than he was returned to the Assembly as the representative from Dutchess County. He was next made one of the judges of the Common Pleas, and in 1791 was appointed Attorney General of the State. In 1792 he was raised to the bench of the Supreme Court, and the next year he was Chief Justice. In 1804 he was elected Governor. * * *

After the lease for Grasmere had expired, the General purchased a farm in the town of Staatsburgh that extended from the Hudson River more than a mile into the interior. The tract was beautifully wooded, the views from the hills fine. The site for the capacious brick house that he erected on the property was well selected. The grounds sloped in every direction, and the health of the large family that grew up on the place did honor to the locality.

CHAPTER XXXIV

The following obituary of George A. Lewis whose record appeared in last is considered worthy of being preserved among the records of the Lewises.

George Amasa Lewis was the second of a family of 10 children and the last survivor of 4 sons, 5 of his 6 sisters still alive. He was born in New Boston, N. H. At the age of 20 he came to Medford and spent four years in Magoon's then famous shipyard, moving to Malden in 1834, where he worked for Samuel Cox, the pioneer last manufacturer of N. E. At that time Malden embraced Melrose and Everett, but was a thinly settled farming district, the only industries being a dye house and a last factory, while the village consisted of less than a dozen stores in the vicinity of the present City Hall.

He married Caroline A. Cutter of West Cambridge in 1836, and they had charge of the town poor farm from 1838 to 1840, when he leased the Dexter farm for five years, then the most extensive property of the kind in Malden, owned by two elderly maiden sisters of the Dexter family. In 1845 he bought ground and built the house on Washington street in which he lived till the day of his death. He was employed at the last factory off and on for years. He established a milk business which he sold out in 1870 and went into the wood and coal business, retaining it until obliged to retire at the age of 75 in consequence of a fall in which both his collar bones and two ribs were broken, since that time he had been gradually declining, and for the last eleven months had been confined to the house.

During the forties he was a member of the militia and of old Alert Engine Company, the first Malden ever had and but two members survive him. He never knew the taste of liquor or tobacco, was a strict disciplinarian, scrupulously honorable, and an earnest Christian for over 60 years a member of the Congregational church, always taking a deep interest in the welfare of the society. He leaves a son and four grandsons, his wife having but preceeded him but three days at the age of 73 years.

CHAPTER L.

By Henry J. Lewis, Louisville, Ky.

Thomas (9) son of General Andrew Lewis was killed by a fall from his horse. He was never married but had his marriage license in his pocket when he was killed.

(Is a copy of this license in existence? Ed.)

Thomas Lewis (v p 13 Vol. V.) was not the son of General Andrew Lewis. He was born in Caroline County. Va., Dec. 18, 1764. In the year 1781 (when only 16 years old) he was drafted into the Revolutionary army, three different times for the term of two months each. He was at the "Seige of York" and the "Surrender of Cornwallis" and served under the following officers: Captains Coleman, Sutton and Taylor; Colonels Andrew Thornton and Thos. Matthews, Majors Cary and Spotswood. The Commanding Generals were Washington, Lafayette and Wheedon. In the latter part of 1781 he was appointed the Second Sergeant of his company. He moved from Virginia and resided 17 years in Genessee county, N. Y., 3 years in Butler County, Ohio, and settled in Switzerland County, Ind., sometime previous to 1824. He was granted a pension, as a Revolutionary soldier, at the August term of the Probate Court of Switzerland County, Ind., in 1832 and he died July 28, 1833.

Whether this is the Thomas who m (1) Miss Evans is not certain but this Thomas did m. (2) Sarah Howard and had ch. as given in chapter 15.

Notes.

Convention echoes:—S. C. Lewis of Franklin, Pa. was a delegate to the Republican convention. After his return Gov. Hastings appointed him a member of his staff with the rank of Colonel.... R. E. Lewis republican nominee for Governor of Missouri, said in Kansas City, "If I was governor of Missouri I would advocate home rule and local self-government. I don't know of any reason why the people of this metropolitan city should not elect all of the officers who rule over it. I don't know why it should be necessary for the people of Kanas City to have men appointed from the state capital whom they do not want to rule over them." "We Republicans want the finances let alone. That is what is the matter with the country. Stop juggling with the finances and confidence will be restored and prosperity will come again. The Republican party stands for a policy which keeps American money at home and does not send it abroad to buy foreign products. Open the closed factories, give the workmen work and pay him good 100 cent dollars for it."... The work in the Democratic State Convention at Trenton, N. J. had been nearly finished when away down in the middle of the hall a man arose whom nobody knew, and said: "Mr. Chairman." Strangely enough he got the Chairman's attention, and was recognized at once. Then he made a speech lasting half an hour, which swept the Convention off its feet. There was not any time lost in finding out who the man was, and in putting him on the list of delegates to the Indianapolis Convention, where this man of about 50 years of quiet, retiring disposition, highly educated, who has given more time to literary pursuits than to the practice of law, made a speech which, for sound argument that incited to enthusiasm, was the most successful of any of the speeches heard at the big mass meeting. He spoke first of the dangers of a fluctuating currency. He described in a convincing way how the foundations of the great fortunes of the country were laid in the days of fluctuating currency. Then he briefly reviewed financial legislation, and showed the dangers of the financial heresy that has been sweeping over the country for the last year or so. Finally he came to a defense of the President of the United States for his action in sending the troops to Chicago in 1894, to quell the riots and the mobs that had been proved too much for the Chicago police to handle. During the last part of this speech the audience, which had before been cheering enthusiastically, became silent. For ten minutes there was complete silence. At the conclusion of the speech there was just an instant of quiet, and then as one man the crowd on the floor and galleries rose and cheered and yelled enthusiastically. Flags were waved, and hats and coats were thrown in the air. The demonstration lasted several minutes, and at the end there was cheer after cheer for Charlton T. Lewis who lives at Morristown, N. J. and is a member of the New York bar....[Two of these are much interested in Lewisiana and its work. S. C. Lewis is a member of Book 27 and Charlton T. Lewis of Book 54 in whose records chapters from them can be found. ED.]

Here and there:—Leslie Lewis M. A. Yale 1866 is Supt. of Schools at Chicago, Ills.....E. N. Lewis is an Attorney at Lima, Ohio....The Bell, Lewis and Yates coal properties have been sold to the Rochester and Pittsburgh Coal and Iron Co. While the price paid is not definitely known, it is believed that it is not far from $3,000,000.....Fredrique R. Lewis, real estate, 154 Orange-st. New Haven, Ct.....Ray R. Clippings.

On Tuesday, Apr. 21, the city officials were deposed by a band of merry maskers, and the coming of her Majesty, La Reina de la Fiesta de Los Angelos, was announced. This royal parsonage visits her capital city for a week each year and commands a cessation of ordinary tasks in honor of the event. She is chosen from the highest social circle, and spares no pains or expense in sustaining her regal office. The young matron who was selected to rule over the fiesta of 1896 has been for some years the acknowledged beauty of the city. She is a native of Shreveport, Louisiana, the daughter of Mr. R. H. Howell, a prominent capitalist of Los Angeles, and the wife of Mr. Mark B. Lewis. She has a tall, graceful figure, abundant dark hair, large brown eyes, and classic features. When she appeared before an immense audience on the evening of the 21st, in a coronation robe befitting the sovereign of any country, the verdict was universal that no fairer queen could exsit. Her gown was of pink satin brocaded in golden chrysanthemums, with jeweled corsage, a Medici collar of gold lace. and court train of yellow satin bordered with ermine. A brilliant girdle fell nearly to the hem of her dress in front, diamonds encircled her neck, and upon her head rested a golden crown. She was attended by two pages and a prime minister, in white satin costumes, and surrounded by sixteen maids of honor. The first parade took place on the 22d, and passed in review before the queen's throne and spacious tribunes which had been erected around it. Her Majesty's costume was of heavy white silk, containing dashes or emerald green, with a court train of emerald velvet, and sparkling jewels in addition to the girdle and crown.—From Leslie's Weekly.

The editor regrets exceedingly that in the arrangement of the forms of the last issue two lines in connection with the cut on page 37 should have been left out. The illustration shows for itself that it represents the handkerchief of Merab Lewis, but it does not tell that LEWISIANA is indebted for the use of it to Mr. George C. Atwell, the managing editor of the Connecticut Quarterly.

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used; as b. for born; d. died; m. married; m. (1) first wife; dau. daughter; unm. not married; v. p. see page, etc. Instead of repeating the name of a place in the same paragraph initials only are frequently given.

CHAPTER LXXXIX.

By GEO. HARLAN LEWIS, N. Y. CITY.

A brief statement of evidence that Joseph (11 v. p. 104, Vol. V.) is a member of the Malden line, Book XXXVI.

Joseph (49) m. Hannah Jones and Sybil (50) m. Samuel Howard, both at Malden "in ye year 1700." (Malden Records.) Joseph went to Woburn and settled and had children. Note. Woburn was a part of Charlestown called Charlestown Village until 1642 when incorporated.

Mary the widow of John (1) Book 36, married John Cutler of Woburn and remained there and Samuel (5) son of John, was also there.

Joseph (11) m. Mary Jones and she returned to Malden after the Massacre by the Indians at Swansea, and m. Jany. 11, 1676–7 at Malden, Obadiah Jenkins and had several children. She was the daughter of Robert Jonas of Hull. Robert Jones m. Ann Bibble and had several children. Ann Bibble was the dau. of John and Sybil Bibble of Malden, later of Hull. Sybil Bibble, widow of John, m. Miles Nutt and on Oct. 30, 1674, became the wife of John Doolittle of Malden where she died and her gravestone says Sibble Doolittle, wife of John, aged about 82 years, Sept. 23, 1690.

Documentary evidence to prove this statement will follow.

[There seems to be little or no evidence that Joseph (11) belongs to Book XXIV. But as he and his descendants have been placed here (v. p. 22, Vol. III.) it seems best pending this discussion to keep them here. Those interested will notice on another page claim with proof that Joseph belongs to Book XXXIII. Ed.]

CHAPTER XIII.

By Geo. Harlan Lewis, N. Y. City.

On file in the office of the Clerk of the Court at East Cambridge, in the trial of James Hall, 1671, 4, 20. Testimony of Bryan Bredane, aged about 28 years, says "James Hall had his mare to carry his Bryan's sister-in-law to Concord. Hall lodged at his house on his way to Marblehead on Thursday after election day. Examination of James Hall, seaman, details his voyages. Went to Marblehead, returned and went to Malden the next day after election and lodged at Bryan Bredane's. The occasion of his going to Malden was for good will he bare to Bryan Bredane's wife who lived there, who he was acquainted with when she lived at Mr. Parker's by the pump near the old meeting house. He had a mare of Bryan Bredane and carried Sarah Lewis (7, v. p. 3, Vol. III.) behind him to Concord and there left Sarah at her brother Joseph Lewis's (3) and Joseph came down with her last Tuesday night, etc., June 20, 1671, testimony was taken. This shows that Joseph was in Concord keeping house at that time and not at Swansea.

Hall had probably gone to Marblehead to see Elizabeth Lewis who had lived at Mr. Parker's at Marblehead, and he was sent to Bredane's who lived at Black Ann's corner, between Malden and Saugus, on a strip of land that was part of Rumney Marsh. Bredane was Irish.

Isaac Lewis (12 v. p. 104, Vol. III. and p. 39, Vol. VII.) d. Apr. 3, 1691, ae. 34 yrs., as on Apr. 6, 1691, Mary, his widow filed an inventory of his estate amounting to £320-6-0. Real estate as per 2 deeds, £169-10-0. Personal estate £150-16-0, appraised by Wm. Ireland, Samuel Townsend and Wm. Hasey. (Suffiolk Probate Records, Vol. VIII. p. 212.) Letters of administration were granted Apr. 10, 1694, v. p. 8, Vol. VII.

Savage's Dictionary in giving the children of Isaac (12. v. p. 104, Vol. III.) names Elizabeth, 5th ch. b. Feb. 12, 1689. The following will show there were but 5 ch. at time of Isaac's death and his heirs.

Suffolk Probate Records, Vol. XVII, p. 474. Assignment of Personal Estate of Isaac Lewis of Rumney Marsh, intestate. Inventory filed July 28, 1691 by Mary Pratt, formerly Lewis, now wife of Thomas Pratt, amounting to £150–16–0, and the said administrators declaring through ignorance of their duty, they have been negligent and remiss in keeping exact and particular account of what debts, charges and payments were by them made thereout and being unable to vouch the same, for the love and affection which they bear to the children of the said deceased and in consideration of the small income received from the real estate, they the said administrators are willing to be accountable for the full personal estate according to the inventory, to be distributed in manner as the law directs, without subduction for the loss and charge by them expended in educating and bringing up the said deceased's children or any of them, (being five in number) most of them very young, or for any charge they have been out about the said estate. I do therefor assign to said Mary Pratt, relict of said deceased, Isaac Lewis, one third part of said personal estate amounting to £50–5–4, over and above her dower in the real estate and to said Isaac, Joseph John and Abraham and Mary (now wife of Wm. Sargent of Malden, Yeoman,) children of said deceased, the several sums following as their respective parts and proportions of the remaining $\frac{2}{3}$ parts of the personal estate of deceased, (discounting what has been to them or either of them already advanced. Isaac, eldest son, his double share £33–10–2½, and to Joseph, John and Abraham and Mary (Sargent) £16–15–1¼. Dated Boston, June 20, 1712.

In Suffolk Probate Records, Vol. XXI., p. 810, file 4352. Brian Breeden of Rumney Marsh, Will, Sept. 26, 1720. His sons James and Samuel administrators. Gives personal estate in doors to his two daughters, Abigail and Mary "and to no others" equally, a cow and £20 each. Lands to sons, James and Samuel.

This gives his ch. by his wife, Elizabeth (v. p. 103, Vol. III.)

142. I. James.

143. II. Samuel.

144. III. Abigail.

145. IV. Mary.

FRANCIS LEWIS, Signer of the Declaration of Independence.

CHAPTER XIX.

By Julia L. Delafield in her Biography of Morgan Lewis.

Peter R. Livingston and his brother,

Maturin were among the most constant of the visitors in Queen Street; the attraction for the latter was his cousin, Margaret Lewis. She was just seventeen when he first made his proposals. The General decided that she was too young to bind herself for life, that she must be allowed at least a year for consideration before he would consent to an engagement. At the end of the year my father renewed his offer and was accepted. They were married at Staatsburgh, on the 29th of May, 1798.

The wedding dress of Margaret Lewis was an embroidered India muslin; the waist made a l'enfant with short sleeves; the skirt short in front, scant, but not tight, with a long train, trimmed with French lace; the hair waving and curled was worn at full length.

My mother's hair, a glossy brown on the top, shaded gradually into a bright auburn, as it fell in profusion far below her waist. She was not above the middle height, perfectly well made, with beautiful feet. Her head phrenologically was fine. She had large, brown eyes, delicate features, teeth like two rows of pearls. In complexion she was a light brunette with a good deal of color. All her life she was the picture of health. She preserved her appearance to the last.

Maturin Livingston and Margaret Lewis were both descended from John Livingston, the Commissioner. My father, through James, one of his elder children, my mother, through Robert, the youngest child and first proprietor of the Manor. There were four generations between my father and John Livingston. James, the name of his wife I have not yet ascertained. Robert Livingston, the nephew, married Margaretta Schuyler; James Livingston married Maria Kiersted; Robert James Livingston married Susan Smith. There were also four generations between my mother and John Livingston, the Commissioner. Robert Livingston, first proprietor of the Manor, married Alida Van Rensselaer vorn Schuyler; Robert Livingston of Clermont, married Margaret Howerdon; Judge Robert Livingston married Margaret Beekman; General Lewis married Gertrude Livingston. They were also cousins through Margaret Beekman, granddaughter of Robert Livingston, the nephew, and of Margaretta Schuyler, who were also the great-grandparents of my father.

Mr. Williams becoming insolvent, his creditors disposed of the Lansdowne Washington by a lottery of forty tickets, at fifty guineas each, when it became the property of John Delaware Lewis, M. P. who in 1876 sent it to this country for exhibition at the Centennial Exposition, where, remarkable to relate, it was hung in the British section. In the winter of 1889 I inquired of Mr. Herman Leroy Lewis, who had inherited the picture from his father, whether it was signed and dated. In reply he said: I have looked the picture over carefully, and have not been able to discover any trace of signature."

GEORGE LEWIS, Casco Bay, Me.

CHAPTER IV.

By Geo. Harlan Lewis, N. Y. City.

George (1 v p 190, Vol. VI.) Willis Portland, p. 244, says Nathan Willis gives account that "Lewis showed me his will and I heard it read, that his two sons should have 12 pence apiece but his land he had given to his three youngest daughters and all his goods. He said he had given his sons enough already. On pages 204–5, a letter of Thaddeus Clark, dated Aug. 16, 1676, says that George and his wife were killed by the Indians on the 11th, but he was mistaken as George and family escaped to James Andrews's Island in safety.

John (2) wife's name was Elinor.

Philip (3, v p 190, Vol. VI.) in Willis Portland, p 134, Elizabeth Clark, granddaughter of Geo. Cleaves, testifies that Philip Lewis lived a considerable time on Hog Island as a tenant of Mr. Tyng, her son-in-law, and received money several times of the people of Falmouth for feeding their creatures on said Island. It is a beautiful island of about 250 acres and it is not known why it was so named. Essex Co., Mass., Records, Lib. 27, fol. 34 says, Henry Kenny of Salem, Yeoman, and wife Priscilla, John Hogg, mariner, and wife Elizabeth, and Mercy Allen of Boston and Mary Lewis of Salem, single-woman, all children and heirs of Philip Lewis late of Casco Bay, yeoman, deceased, for 20 shillings sell to David Phippen of Boston, shipwright, 60 acres at Casco Bay, formerly granted our said father Philip Lewis, deceased Dated Oct. 30, 1701. Salem Records say Henry, son of Henry and Ann Kenny, b. Salem, May 1, 1669, m. May 14, 1691. Priscilla Lewis, and had 4 daughters. Boston Records say: John Hogg m. Elizabeth Lewis, Feb. 22, between 1690 and 1700, year not given.

Mercy Allen is no doubt the Mercy Lewis who was bewitched mentioned in the Witchcraft trials in 1691–2, in one of which she testified that she had consulted (Goodwife) Cloice. She was then about 19 years of age and belonged to Thomas Putnam's family. ch. of Philip.

Lewis, for instance, is almost sure to be chosen, for he has a tenor voice of much sweetness, and besides he says he was at one time a genuine minister of the gospel. The parson, however, fell by the wayside, and his term still has twenty eight years to run. In a reckless moment, two years ago, he impersonated a United States officer and did things he should not have done. While genuine officers were chasing him through the wilds of the Tennesee mountains, where "stills" and "blind tigers" flourish, he committed just fourteen other indiscretions against the laws of Uncle Sam, and the Judge who sentenced him thought two years for each offence was a very mild dose for a man of the parson's character....."Hungry Joe" the smoothest and most successful confidence man in his time has been released from the penitentiary of Baltimore. His real name is Joseph Lewis and he is 46 years old. General Logan, Judge Davis, Chas. Francis Adams and other illustrious Americans have indulged in the pleasant but expensive luxury of an acquaintance with him.

The Society of the Cincinnati in Connecticut.

1783–1893.

By Rev. A. N. Lewis, Chaplain of the Society in Connecticut.

The Society of the Cincinnati was organized in the Cantonments of the Continental Army on the banks of the Hudson, May 13, 1783.

Gen. Knox, if not the founder, was the principal promoter of the movement. The Baron Steuben also "had something to do with it."*

It was near the close of the Revolution, in some respects the darkest and gloomiest days of the struggle. The disbandment of the Army was near at hand. The pay of the officers and soldiers was in arrears and Congress, tho' often petitioned, did not seem disposed to do anything for the relief of the Army. Many of the officers were bankrupt. Washington, in a letter to Hamilton, says: "It is affirmed to me that a large portion of the officers have no better prospect than a jail."

It was at this time that an anonymous letter, counseling the most radical measures, was scattered thro' every State Line in the camp upon the banks of the Hudson. There was open mutiny in the Pennsylvania Line, in Green's Army at the South, and among Putnam's troops quartered at Redding, Conn. It was the darkest period of the whole war

The situation suggested to the officers a union among themselves, to endure beyond the reach of Congress, and even after they should be disbanded. Accordingly, in the early part of May, 1783, proposals for the establishment of such an Association were submitted to the State Lines of the Army encamped upon the Hudson. One officer from each Line was informally appointed to meet the general officers on the 10th of May, at Baron Steuben's Headquarters.* The result of their deliberations was the Order or Society of the Cincinnati.

The Institution (or Constitution) provided for a General, State and District Societies.† The State Societies were to meet on the 4th of July of each year, and the General Society triennially. The General Society was to consist of its officers and five delegates from each State Society.

An "order" or jewel was agreed upon. It consists of an American or bald eagle of gold and white enamel, with suitable emblems and inscriptions, suspended from a blue ribbon edged with white, the two colors symbolizing the alliance of France and the United States, to be worn attached to the left lapel of the coat, or on the left breast of the coat, or suspended from the neck.

The following officers were present at the Convention: the Baron Steuben, (who presided); Maj. Gen's. Heath, Howe and Knox; Brig. Gen's. Pattison, Hand, Huntington and Putnam;‡ Cols. Webb, H. Jackson and Cortland; Lt. Cols. Huntington, Hull and Maxwell: Capt. Shaw, (who acted as Secretary, and Lieut. Whiting.

*Marshall Sparks.

*The Verplanck house in Fishkill still standing.

†No district societies were ever organized.

Thanksgiving.

By Anna Lewis McConnell, Elmira, N. Y.

Give thanks, give thanks, O heart of mine!
For the pleasures you daily enjoy;
For the glorious sunlight that gilds all the earth,
Its radiant beams turning sadness to mirth,
Unmixed with a ray of alloy.

For this beautiful world, its rocks and its rills
And landscape fair to behold;
For the sweetness of flower, and song of the bird,
And music that thrills, till passion is stirred,
Giving praises we cannot withhold.

Give thanks for the sky that arches o'erhead
With its jewels of gold set in blue;
For the storm-king that threatens in grandeur sublime,
For the gift of the rain; free gift of Divine
That cometh for me and for you.

For the breath of the wood as we gather its store;
Filling our souls with delight
For mountain and valley that echo our song,
And health-giving breeze as we wander along,
All nature unveiled in our sight.
Give thanks O my soul; for friendship and love
The love that never grows cold;
But liveth and waxeth till hearts blend in one,
And the life that we live is but Heaven begun
Ere reaching the upper fold.

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used; as b. for born; d. died; m. married; m. (1) first wife; dau. daughter; unm. not married; v. p. see page, etc. Instead of repeating the name of a place in the same paragraph initials only are frequently given.

Hints for Contributors.

In writing matter for the printer use only one side of the sheet, note paper preferred. In giving dates, give year, month and day whenever known. Write all middle names in full. Answer the following questions as fully as possible and give names and addresses of such people as you think may be able to complete the record but get it yourself if possible and spare the editor. Old newspaper files, tomb stones, family Bibles and records, official records of the town, school and church, burial certificates, county and probate records, old deeds and letters are some of the more important sources of information. Don't forget however the stores of information which the old people can give. Get them interested and then "pump them dry." Most important of all don't get discouraged yourself. How can you interest others, if you yourself are not alive with enthusiasm?

BENJAMIN LEWIS, Stratford, Conn.

CHAPTER LXXVIII.

By Helen Perry Maxwell, N. Y. City.

Lieut. Norman (489 v. p. 67, Vol. VI) was wounded in the battle of Cedar Creek (Oct. 19, 1864) and died in a hospital at Winchester, Va., on Nov. 16, 1864. In the sketch of his life in the "Record of the 114th Regiment N. Y. S. V." it is stated that Norman Mitchell Lewis learned the carpenter's trade in Morrisville, and attended school in the village. In the spring of 1856, a few months before the death of his father, he took up his residence in Norwich, N. Y. His father was in the war of 1812, at Sacketts Harbor. His grandfather Beardslee was in the war of Independence, leaving a widow many years a pensioner, who died in 1857, at the advanced age of one hundred years and six months.

When the cry came for more men, the "carpenter boy" left the plane upon the bench to enter the army. He enlisted in Company C, under Captain Titus, and upon its organization was appointed First Sergeant. In August, 1863, he was promoted to Second, and in November following to First Lieutenant. He was wounded in the right arm at Sabine Cross Roads, and against his wishes, sent to New Orleans. Here he received thirty days leave of absence, visited his friends in the North and rejoined his Company at Morganza, La., two days before his leave expired. His funeral was attended from the residence of Mr. Romulus Lewis, brother of the deceased, the services being conducted by Rev. J. R. Lewis, Pastor of the Congregational church. The Madison Observer concluded a notice of the death of this gallant officer, in these words:

"He was a brave soldier and a good citizen, highly esteemed by his relatives and acquaintances, and his untimely fall is sincerely lamented by our whole community."

CHAPTER CCXLIII.

By S. D. Lewis, Syracuse, N. Y.

In 1846 my uncle, Prof. Tayler Lewis, for the purpose of gathering some statistics regarding his ancestry visited Rhode Island. In the town of North Kingston he found still living a sister of his father, Ruth Tillinghast (2729). In a retired part of the town of Exeter he found the Lewis family burying ground where lie buried his gt. grandfather Jonathan (50) Lewis and Jane his wife together with their five sons, Jonathan, John, Thomas, Caleb and Sylvester and their respective wives. Prof. Tayler Lewis also entered a house in Exeter built by his gt. gr. father, Jonathan (50 in 1734 when his gr. father, Sylvester (101) was seven (nine ? Ed.) years old and where his father, Capt. Samuel (2722) was born and reared. This house, in which both Jonathan (50) and Sylvester (101) died, was then owned and occupied by a descendant of Jonathan (50) named Bates.

Jonathan (50) b. 1690, d. 1783 ae. 93 years.

Sylvester (101) his son, b. 1725, d. 1817, ae. 92 years.

Capt. Samuel (2722 v. Query 43, p. 160 Vol. VI.) his son b. 1752, d. 1822, ae. 70 years.

Sylvester (2738) his son, b. 1788, d. 1874 ae. 86 years.

At the breaking out of hostilities between the Colonies and the mother country Samuel (2722) hastened to New York and enlisted in the 1st N. Y. Regt.; was promoted to its captaincy and served throughout the war. [In the record of service of Officers of the Revolution it is stated

"Samuel Lewis (N. Y.) Ensign 3rd N. Y., Nov. 21, 1776; Lieutenant March 1, 1780; transferred to 1st N. Y. Jany. 1, 1781 and served to June 3, 1783. Died Aug. 25, 1822." Ed.]

He was at the battles of Saratoga and the Siege of Yorktown and was an intimate friend of Washington. At the close of the war he settled in Albany, N. Y., m. a Miss Bloodgood and became a member and one of the founders of the Society of Cincinnati and his certificate of membership is still preserved at Albany. Later he removed to a tract of land bordering on the southern bank of the Hudson in Saratoga co. nearly opposite Fort Miller. Here he lived and died and here the descendants of his daughter live to this day.

CHAPTER CCXLIV. (SAMUEL.)

From Harper's Biblical Cyclopedia.

Tayler Lewis, D. D. LL. D., a distinguished Biblical scholar and Congregational divine, was born in Northumberland, N. Y., Mar. 27, 1802. He graduated from Union College in 1820, studied law in Albany, and being admitted to the bar entered on the practice of his profession at Fort Miller. In 1833 he gave up his practice of law and opened a classical school at Waterford, and in 1835 removed his school to Ogdensburg. In 1838 he was chosen professor of Greek in the University of New York, which chair he occupied until 1849, when he was appointed professor of the Greek language and literature in his Alma Mater, and occupied that position until his death, May 11, 1877. Through all the years of his professorate he was a thorough, indefatigable student of Oriental and Biblical literature. He employed his attainments to defend and illustrate the truths of divine revelation. Among his first publications were translations and texts of Plato's works, accompanied with valuable notes and critical dissertations. In 1855 he published his Six Days of Creation, the work by which he became widely known as one of the ablest defenders of divine revelation. Dr. Lewis contributed largely to magazines, both monthly and quarterly, and his contributions to religious journals were almost without number. [In 1856 he published The Bible and Science, in 1860 The Divine Human in the Scriptures, and in 1871 in association with E. W. Blyden and Theodore Dwight, The People of Africa, their Character, Condition and Future Prospects.—Ed.]

CHAPTER XCII.

BY ANNA LEWIS MCCONNELL, ELMIRA, N. Y.

In my father's (Luther 231, v p 21, Vol. VII.) family Bible is a brief history, which I hope soon to send to LEWISIANA. It is the history of three brothers who left England for America; one of them being my father's gt. gt. gr. father. [The Editor hopes to receive soon this bit of history although he must frankly confess that he has little or no faith in the "three brothers" tradition. It should be noticed that as Luther's (231) descent is George (1), James (6), John (35), John (51), James Hawkes (163), John (195), Luthur (231), that it was the gt. gr. father of his gt. gt. gr. father who came from England.

Luther's gt. gt. gr. father John was b. at Barnstable, Mass., Sept. 29, 1656, and came to Hingham in 1675. He was a blacksmith and his house, now used as a shoe store, stood on Main street where E. L. Corthell now (1888) resides. His mother was Sarah Lane the first white girl born at Hingham, Mass., (v p 22 and 30, Vol. II.). He probably never saw English shores.—Ed.]

FRANCIS LEWIS, Signer of the Declaration of Independence.

CHAPTER XX.

By Julia L. Delafield, in Her Biography of Morgan Lewis.

In 1804, Colonel Burr and General Lewis were rivals for the office of Governor, the latter was the favorite of the Federal party, who generally gave him their votes and he was elected by a large majority.

The distinguishing act of the administration of General Lewis was the establishment of a permanent fund for the support of common schools. In his first address to Legislature we find the following paragraph: "I cannot conclude gentlemen without calling your attention to a subject which my worthy and highly respected predecessor in office had much at heart, and frequently, I believe, presented, though not perhaps in an official form to your view, the encouragement of literature. In a government resting on public opinion, and deriving its chief support from the affections of the people, religion and morality cannot be too sedulously inculcated. To them science is a handmaid; ignorance the worst of enemies. Literary information should be placed within the reach of every description of citizens, and poverty should not be permitted to obstruct the path to the fane of knowledge. Common schools, under the guidance of respectable teachers, should be established in every village, and the indigent educated at the public expense. The higher seminaries also should receive every support and patronage within the means of enlightened legislators. Learning would then flourish, and vice would be more effectually restrained than by volumes of penal statutes."

In a community such as ours the education of the people would, no doubt, have become in time the settled policy of the State; but we owe a debt of gratitude to General Lewis, that a measure of such vital importance was proposed and carried into effect as soon as the population of the State made it desirable, and its wealth was sufficient to meet the necessary expense.

How are you helping to make Lewisiana a success?

JOHN LEWIS, Ireland to Virginia.

CHAPTER LI.

From History of Augusta Co., Va., by Col. J. Lewis Peyton.

Thomas Lewis, the eldest son of the Founder, was born in Donegal, Ireland, April 27th, 1718, and died in Augusta, January 31st, 1790. He was a man of strong and cultivated mind, of spirit and enterprise, and during the colonial period and the Revolutionary War rendered important services to his country. In 1746, he was appointed Colonial surveyor of Augusta, and much of Washington's great wealth was acquired by surveys of land under his authority and in common with him. He and Col. John Wilson represented the county in the House of Burgesses almost uninterruptedly from 1745 to 1767, and they voted, in 1765, for Patrick Henry's celebrated resolutions declaring that this, "general assembly have the only exclusive right and power to lay taxes and impositions upon the inhabitants of this colony; that any efforts in an opposite direction are illegal, unconstitutional and unjust, and have a manifest tendency to destroy British as well as American freedom." In 1775, he was unanimously elected delegate to the Colonial Congress, and was one of the first to enroll his name among the "Sons of Liberty." He was Commissioner of the old confederacy of the thirteen colonies, in 1778, to treat with the Indian tribes who had been defeated at the battle of Point Pleasant, and successfully concluded his negotiations, thus setting free from the defense of the western border thousands of our best troops, who hastened to join the standard of Washington and fight for the independence of their country He was a member of the convention which ratified the Constitution of the United States, and by a vote so nearly divided that the patriot yet rejoices at his country's escape from the anarchy which would have been the consequence of a different result. He urged with eloquence and ability the adoption of the Constitution and voted for its ratification. After the Revolution, Washington made him a visit at Lewiston, in Rockingham, and there arranged their land claims. Gov. Gilmer says in his sketches of Upper Georgia, p. 548: "My father, then a youth of nineteen, returning from my Grandfather Lewis', where he had been visiting my mother, met Washington fording the Shenandoah river in the dusk of the evening. Washington asked him how he should go to Mr. Lewis'. My father, taking him for some big Dutchman of the neighborhood, who was poking fun at him on account of his frequent visits to the Lewis family, answered, "follow your nose." It is a noticeable fact in a country of such rapid changes as ours that his descendants still own and reside upon his estate of Lewiston, near Port Republic, in the present county of Rockingham, (1882). His great grandson Hon. John F. Lewis, is the present Lieut.-Governor of Virginia; another great-grandson, Hon. L. L. Lewis, is Judge of the Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia, and a great-great-grandson, D. S. Lewis, is U. S. Attorney for the Western District of Virginia.

CHAPTER XI.

By Maria A. Lewis Manchester, Providence, R. I.

Jeremiah (18 v p 25, Vol. VII) one of eighteen children, had limited advantages when young, but being extremely fond of books, began at the age of eighteen to collect a library, and so acquired a good education, being familiar with chemistry, geology, and a great historian at the age of seventy years. But his great excellence was a sound understanding and solid judgment in public and private affairs. He greatly enjoyed the society of his friends, and always took care to converse on some useful topic that might tend to improve the minds of his children. By this means he always turned their attention to what was good, just and prudent.

The Society of the Cincinnati in Connecticut.

1783–1893.

By Rev. A. N. Lewis, Chaplain of the Society in Connecticut.

The objects of the society were "(1) to preserve inviolate those exalted rights and liberties for which they have fought and bled; (2) to promote and cherish, between the respective states, union and national honor; and (3) to cultivate affection and brotherly kindness among the officers, and particularly substantial acts of beneficence towards the officers and their families who unfortunately may be under the necessity of receiving it." The above are known as The Immutable Principles of the society and are read at every meeting, the members standing.

To carry out the third principle, a fund was established, each officer, on joining, to contribute a month's pay towards establishing it.

The Institution was signed by Gen. Washington, 9 Major Generals, 9 Brigadier Generals, 11 Colonels, 10 Lieut. Colonels, 7 Majors, 14 Captains, 24 Lieutenants, 5 Cornets, 2 Surgeons, and 1 Surgeon's Mate. Total 93.

Thirteen state societies were organized. From various causes seven (N. H., R. I., Conn., Delaware, Va., N. C. and Ga.) were disbanded. The R. I., Conn., Va., N. H., Del., and N. C. Societies have been re-organized, so that the society now exists in all of the original states except Georgia. The whole number of members in a few years increased to about 2500. The present number is about 500.

The Generals and Colonels of the French Army and officers of the French Navy above the grade of Captain, were also declared eligible and 72 were admitted. Of these 55 were princes, dukes, counts, viscounts, marquises, chevaliers and barons.

Washington signed first by request of the convention.

In a few months after its organization the society was violently attacked as an aristocracy, whose object was "to overthrow the Republic and usurp the supreme power!" It was opposed by Jefferson, John Adams, Franklin, John Jay and others. In some of the states threats of disfranchisement were made against the members. The popular excitement was almost equal to that which assailed the Masonic fraternity half a century later.

At the first general meeting in 1784 Washington was unanimously elected President-General, and remained in office to his death. The following succeeded him:

Alexander Hamilton, N. Y., 1800–1805.
Charles Colesworth Pinckney, S. C., 1805–1825.
Thomas Pinckney, S. C., 1825–1829.
Aaron Ogden, N. J., 1829–1839.
Morgan Lewis, N. Y., 1839–1844.
William Popham, N. Y., 1844–1848.
Henry A. S. Dearborn, Mass., 1848–1854.
Hamilton Fish, N. Y., 1854–1895.
William Wayne, Penn., 1896.

All of the above but the last two were officers of the Revolution.

Membership goes down from father to eldest son. If the eldest son's line fails, then to the second son's line. If all the male lines fail, then to the eldest daughter's line, and so on. If all the lines fail then to the collateral branches.

Honorary members also may be elected as life members, from gentlemen of distinguished merit and patriotism.

(to be concluded.)

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used; as b. for born; d. died; m. married; m. (1) first wife; dau. daughter; unm. not married; v. p. see page, etc. Instead of repeating the name of a place in the same paragraph initials only are frequently given.

Hints for Contributors.

In writing matter for the printer use only one side of the sheet, note paper preferred. In giving dates, give year, month and day whenever known. Write all middle names in full. Answer the following questions as fully as possible and give names and addresses of such people as you think may be able to complete the record but get it yourself if possible and spare the editor. Old newspaper files, tomb stones, family Bibles and records, official records of the town, school and church, burial certificates, county and probate records, old deeds and letters are some of the more important sources of information. Don't forget however the stores of information which the old people can give—Get them interested and then "pump them dry." Most important of all don't get discouraged yourself. How can you interest others, if you yourself are not alive with enthusiasm?

Family Record Questions.

1. Name in full; initials are often a source of confusion.

2. When and where born?

3. When and where married and by whom?

4. To whom married? Always give name in full and in case of the wife give her maiden name.

5. Give date of birth of your "better half or halves."

6. Give cause, place and date of death.

7. Names of parents-in-law, being sure to give maiden name of your mother-in-law.

8. Place or places of residence.

9. What is your occupation?

10. When and where educated?

11. What public office have you held?

12. What service in army or navy?

13. What traditions in your family?

14. Give any interesting events in family history.

15. Names of your children with places and dates of birth.

16. If they are married answer questions 3 to 15 in their behalf.

17. Dates of death for ch. dying unm.

18. Names of your brothers and sisters with dates of birth and as much more of their family history as you can give or obtain from them the complete record.

19. Names of your parents. Be sure to give your mother's maiden name with names of her parents.

20. Dates of birth, marriage and death.

21. Names of your father's parents.

22. Dates of birth, marriage and death.

23. Names of children with dates of birth.

24. Any further history of these uncles and aunts that you can obtain.

25. Anything you can learn of your earlier ancestry. Much of this will probably be fragmentary. It is one object of the LEWISIANA to make this complete for you but you must do your part.

CHAPTER LXXXI.

From Harper's Biblical Cyclopedia.

Zechariah Lewis (272 v. p. 99 Vol. VI.) a Congregational minister and editor, son of Rev. Isaac Lewis D. D., was born at Wilton, Ct., Jan. 1, 1773. With his twin brother, Isaac, he graduated from Yale College in 1794, and after studying theology at Philadelphia under Ashbel Green, D. D., was licensed to preach by the Fairfield West Association in 1796; and in the same year was appointed tutor in Yale College, remaining in that office until 1799. While a theological student he was a private tutor in General Washington's family. Convinced that his health was too much impaired to fulfill the duties of the ministry, he became the editor of the Commercial Advertiser and New York Spectator. [The remainder of this sketch is practically the account of his life given on p. 164 Vol. IV, and is therefore omitted here. The records of the Fairfield West Association if in existence would it seems settle the disputed point whether Zechariah was a clergyman or not. v. p. 99 Vol. VI. —Ed.)

Isaac Lewis (273) D. D., a Congregational minister, was born at Wilton, Ct., Jan. 1, 1773. He graduated from Yale College in 1794, with his twin brother, Zechariah. Remaining at New Haven he prosecuted the study of theology and was ordained May 30, 1798. He was installed pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Cooperstown, N. Y., in 1800; in 1806 of the Presbyterian Church in Goshen; and in 1812 preached in Bristol, R. I.; subsequently served in New Rochelle and West Farms as a stated supply, and succeeded his father in Greenwich, Ct., in Dec. 1818. He assumed charge of the Church in Bristol, R. I., Nov. 12, 1828. In Sept. 1831, the failure of his voice compelled him to resign his charge, though he still preached occasionally until the time of his death, which occurred in N. Y. City, Sept. 23, 1854.

John N. Lewis of Voluntown, was born in Exeter, Washington County, R. I., April 23, 1847. He is a son of Deacon James Lewis, and a grandson of Colonel Nathan B. Lewis, a veteran of the war of 1812. After leaving school he taught for a few years, in his own state and in Illinois. In 1870 he was appointed assistant United States census marshal for Exeter and in 1872 he came to Voluntown and entered the employment of the Briggs Manufacturing Company as bookkeeper and paymaster, which position he has retained since. He has been a member of the school board of Voluntown, most of the time since he became a resident of the town and was postmaster under the Hayes, Garfield and Arthur administrations. He now holds the offices of registrar of voters and town treasurer. Mr. Lewis was a member of the House in 1889, serving on the committee on appropriations. He was also county auditor for a term of two years. He is a thirty-second degree Mason and an Odd Fellow.

CHAPTER CVI.

From Camp's History of New Britain, Conn.

Jonathan Lewis (64) was one of the prominent members of the Kensington society for nearly thirty years before the division and the organization of the New Britain Society; and after the division he was one of the leaders of the latter society. He was married to Elizabeth Newell about 1720, and soon after had his home at the south end of East street near Christian Lane. His farm after his death, passed into the hands of his son, Adonijah. He was prominent in military and civil affairs, holding various offices in the military until he was commissioned as Captain. The title was afterwards associated with his name. He was a member of the school committee of Kensington in 1730 and 1731, was one of the petitioners for relief to the north or New Britain part of the parish in 1739, and yet was appointed by the Kensington society one of the committee to seat the new or second meeting-house in Kensington in 1743. He was a petitioner for a division of the society from 1745 to 1752, and strongly advocated the measure. After the New Britain Society and Church were organized, he was, in 1758, chairman of the committee that as agents of the parish memorialized the town of Farmington for a grant of land to Rev. John Smalley, pastor of the church. He was much respected and esteemed.

[Jonathan Lewis b. June 2, 1697, son of William (6) and Phebe (Moore) Lewis, m. Jany. 28, 1720, Elizabeth, b. Nov. 1, 1689 (v. p. 39, Vol. I.) dau. of Simon and Elizabeth (Wrotham) Newell. He lived on East street, then the most important street of the town, near the boundary line of Berlin. The house is said to have been the first house in New Britain in the "Great Swamp" Parish.

In 1741 the General Court (i. e. the Legislature of Conn.) confirmed as officers of a train band at New Britain: Jonathan Lewis, captain; John Paterson, lieutenant, and Daniel Dewey, ensign. At one of the first society meetings of the New Britain Ecclesiastical Society, Capt. Jonathan Lewis was moderator and the following record made:

"At the same meeting it was agreed by vote to chuse a number of men to assist ye Survaier to make a map of this Society and find the Senter of the same as Nigh as they can. Att the same meeting Capt. Johnathan Lewis and Sergt. Ebenezer Smith and Isaac Lee were chosen for the service afor Said."

After the "senter" had been found and the County Court had fixed the "stake,"

Capt. Jonathan was first of the committee appointed "for the Procuering Necessary highways for ye inhabitants of this Society to com to the place appointed by the County Court for them to Build a Meeting House on."

He was also first of the "Comt. to Git the Timber for said House and Bring it to said Stak, and also Bords Suffitient for floors and Bording the outsid in order for Clabording and Shingling and also two thousand of white pine Bords and also the said Comtt. are Directed to Alow every man in this society to work in proportion to their Lists, if they see caws, and that the value of Each Man's work be compated by said Comtt."

In the spring of 1756 the meeting house was advanced far enough for meetings to be held in it although it was not completed until 1769. During all these years Capt. Jonathan Lewis served on building committees, for supply of the pulpit, for arrangement with candidates for ordination, etc., etc.

With the completion of this meeting-house, for more than fifty years the only public place of assembly, the life work of Jonathan Lewis drew to a close. Soon his name appears no longer on the Society records. He has gone hence. He had 3 (probably more) ch. b.

CHAPTER XCIV.

By Geo. Harlan Lewis, N. Y. City.

In the N. E. Hist. Gen. Reg. Vol. 44 in an attempt to identify English homes of early settlers of this country it is stated that from 1638 to 1641 John Bibble had a wife Sibylat Shadwell in Stepney Parish. Ann Bibble was a petitioner for a minister to be settled at Malden, Oct. 28, 1651, so she must have married Robert Jones between that date and the date of her father's will July 1, 1653. After John Bibbell's death his widow Sibell became the wife of Miles Nutt and on Oct 30, 1674, the wife of John Doolittle and is buried in Malden. The Burying Ground inscription says Sibble Doolittle, wife of John, ae. about 82, Sept. 23, 1690. Her will, Malden, Dec. 25, 1683, written and witnessed by Thomas Cheever, proved 1690, reads Middlesex Records File 4362, 1690, I give unto Obadiah and Mary Jenkins, his wife, and their children all my housing and lands in Malden, with my movables, he paying out of it to my grand children, Robert, Zahary, Benjamin and Rebeccah Jones, five pounds a piece, when they come of age. Item: I give unto my grand-child Sarah Browne one pewter platter and to her son Joseph Browne two pewter platters. Item, I give to Hannah Paddick five shillings and to her children, John and Mary, two pewter platters a piece. And I make my grandson, Obadiah Jenkins my executor of this my last will. I nominate and desire my loving friends, Mr. Wigglesworth and Deacon Sprague, ye overseers of this my last will. In witness I have sett to my hand and this twenty-fifth of December, eighty-three. Signed by mark Witnessed by Rev. Thos. Cheever.

SIBYLL DOOLITTLE.

The house of Mr. Wigglesworth was on Cross st. and opposite the land that John Lewis (I.XXXVI.) sold to Paul Wilson just before he died (v. p. 168, Vol. VI). High st. now runs through it.

Obadiah Jenkins was gr. son. of Sibyll Doolittle by marriage of Mary Jones, her gr. dau. He died about 1720. His wife Mary must have died before he did, as she is not an heir to his estate.

Estate of Obadiah Jenkins, File 8875, 1720, Middlesex Records.

By the death of our honored grandfather Doolittle and our honored father Obadiah Jenkins of Malden. The real estate has been valued at £393–10–0. Each persons share in sd. estate, (except Sibble's share) £60–15–0. Joel Jenkins shall take land prised at (torn out). Obadiah Jenkins shall have land valued at £244–0–0. Signed by Joel Jenkins, Obadiah Jenkins, Zachariah Howard, Mary Howard, Benjamin Teal, Anna Teal, Noah Upham, Lydia Upham, Samuel Howard, Sibilah Howard.

Ch. of Obadiah and Mary (Jones-Lewis) Jenkins (m. Jany. 11, 1677) were these:

I. Joel.
II. Mary m. Zachariah Howard.
III. Annabel.
IV. Lydia m. Noah Upham.
V. Sarah b. Mar. 9, 1685, m.——Taylor.
VI. Ann b. Oct. 29, 1687, m. Benjamin Teal.
VII. Obadiah b. Apr. 4, 1690, d. Feb. 4, 1762, m. 1720, Mary Grover, no ch. In his will made Feb. 3, 1762 (Middlesex Records, File 8876) he mentions his wife and his sisters Sarah Taylor and Lydia Upham.

Middlesex Deeds, Vol. 10, p. 432, Benjamin Jones of Swansea, in Mass., Planter for £3–0–0, paid by Obadiah Jenkins of Malden, Planter, quit-claims his right to one eighth of certain lands given us by my grandfather, John Doolittle. Dated 20th Oct., 1695.

This is a brother of Mary and one mentioned in the wills of Sibyl and John Doolittle and connects Joseph with Swansea again as well as the document published in Chapter VII. v. p. 168, Vol VI.

CHAPTER XCV.

BY D. P. COREY, MALDEN, MASS.

The Homestead of Obadiah Jenkins was in the present City of Everett. From the description it could not have been very far from the present corner of Locust and Main Sts. perhaps a little farther south. Zachary Howard m. Mary Jenkins, Dec. 27, 1710. Benjamin Teal, m. Ann Jenkins, Dec. 31, 1712. Obadiah Jenkins, Jr. m. Mary Grover, Jan. 5, 1720—1. In the sale of the R. E. of Obadiah Jenkins, Jr., who died in 1762, is a description which makes it appear that it was in whole or in part that of his father. It is bounded south by Rev. Eliakin Willis, whose house is still standing on Main St in Everett.

NOTE.—The evidence in Chapters 89, 90 and 94 seems to be conclusive that Obadiah Jenkins m. Mary Lewis, widow of Joseph (11) and that Joseph (11) was father of Joseph (49) and Sibble (50). If it is true that there is no evidence to show any connection between Joseph (11) and his children with the other children and grandchildren of George (1) likewise the claim that Joseph (11) is Joseph (3. XXXVI) so far fails of proof in that as yet no connection between Joseph and his children and the other children and grand children of John (1. XXXVI) Lewis of Malden has been shown with the single exception of residence in same town. ED.

FRANCIS LEWIS. Signer of the Declaration of Independence.

CHAPTER XXI

By Julia L. Delafield, in her Biography of Morgan Lewis.

Very soon after the General's return to Staatsburgh he recovered his health, which had been somewhat impaired by his last northern campaign. He could still lay his hand on the top rail of a fence and jump over it; he never wore an overcoat; he never entered a carriage if it were possible to go on horseback. His soft auburn hair was mingled with gray, but it still waved in abundance around his high forehead. His teeth were superb; one of them he broke accidentally. The first time that it ached he took the proper instrument from its case, went to a looking-glass, fastened it round the troublesome bit of ivory, and drew it himself; the others he carried with him to his grave.

We were a merry family of young people in those days. I often wonder at the General's patience in allowing his house to be filled as it was, year after year, with tutors, governesses, drawing and dancing masters—all that the tastes and the wants of a dozen children of all ages made desirable. [Maturin Livingston, after marriage, spent summers at Staatsburgh, but the trouble of moving his family twice a year proving too much, he sold his New York residence and bought Ellerslie at Rhinebeck, where a mansion was built commanding a beautiful and extensive southern view of the Hudson. Before the family moved into it however, a change a plans occurred, Ellerslie was sold, Staatsburgh enlarged and made the permanent home for both families. Ed.] Carriages and horses of every description were at our disposal; perhaps I owe the health which enables me at this moment [1877] to write the life of my grandfather, to a fleet and beautiful mare, which always stood ready in the stable to carry me over the country.

When peace had brought prosperity to the United States and commerce to New York, General Lewis decided that his grandchildren ought not to live entirely in the country, and for several years he devoted his surplus income to building a double house on two lots that he owned in Leonard street, near the corner of Church street. There may be people still living who remember pleasant dinners and evening parties at that house before the waltz was permitted or the polka the fashion.

The General, as well as my father, believed in the value of real estate in the island of Manhattan, and he had early invested in town lots; when he lived in Leonard street, he found occupation and interest in improving his unproductive property. He built rows of houses in Church street and West Broadway. He put up several blocks of houses in the eastern part of the city, besides stores in Maiden Lane. It gives me pleasure to say, for the credit of his descendants, that this property is essentially in their hands.

In 1832, his house at Staatsburgh was burnt to the ground.... The General occupied himself that summer in building another house at Staatsburgh on the site of the old one. The plan was drawn by my mother, and the result was a really handsome country house, more convenient than the first; yet I do not think that any of us are as fond of it as we were of the ugly mass of red bricks in which, with one exception, we were all born.

DEATHS.

In Westhampton, L. I., Sept. 10, 1896, James Lewis, the actor. Born in Troy. N. Y., in 1840, he leaves a widow, Mrs. Dora Lewis, but no ch.

Clippings from N. Y. papers:

So large a funeral, to the theatrical world so impressive, and withal so simple, has seldom gone in and out of the doors of the Little Church Around the Corner. The edifice seats 1,600 persons. Every seat was filled when, to the solemn strains of Chopin's funeral march, the little weeping procession passed up to the flower decked chancel.

That the American people who are aware of the theatre and who appreciate the best it has to offer were duly grateful to Mr. Lewis for what he did, for the wholesome fun that he diffused, for his rich and varied skill in the denotement of comic traits, is not doubtful. He was a successful man honored, and rewarded in his own country and others. London, Edinburgh, and Dublin, Paris and Berlin, recognized his admirable talent, and applauded it no less heartily than his compatriots.

Yet when one tries to think of the younger men who could play Mr. Lewis' parts or fill the void which his death leaves, one realizes how fine an artist has been taken from us. Mr. Lewis had the gift of comicality, which is rarer than humor. He could make an audience laugh by his mere presence, and he added to the effect of this endowment by long and persistent labor to round out his personations on the artistic side. He had his limitations, of course. His personality was one never to be concealed and it shone through all the long list of parts that he played.

When the Boston company came to New York in 1869 to play an engagement in the old Waverley Theatre, in Broadway, Mr. Augustin Daly was just beginning his managerial career. He went, saw and was conquered by Lewis, and engaged him on the spot as leading comedian for his theatre. This is twenty-seven years ago—a long time for an actor to be before a New York public with never a blemish on his fame as an artist nor a reproach to his reputation as a gentleman.

During this long period Lewis created many new parts, notably Bob Sackett in Bronson Howard's "Saratoga," and he was the American original of Chevior Hill in "Engaged," of Perkin Middlewick in "Our Boys," besides adding much to such Daly successes as "A Night Off," "The big Bonanza," "Love on Crutches" and "Seven-Twenty-Eight."

No estimate of the man would be complete which failed to recognize his worth and modesty as a man as well as his gift as an actor. In a profession where there is every temptation to seek notoriety, Mr. Lewis lived almost in obscurity. His name never got into the newspapers except in connection with his work.

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used; as b. for born; d. died; m. married; m. (1) first wife; dau. daughter; unm. not married; v. p. see page, etc.

Hints for Contributors.

In writing matter for the printer use only one side of the sheet, note paper preferred. In giving dates, give year, month and day whenever known. Write all middle names in full. Answer the following questions as fully as possible and give names and addresses of such people as you think may be able to complete the record but get it yourself if possible and spare the editor. Old newspaper files, tomb stones, family Bibles and records, official records of the town, school and church, burial certificates, county and probate records, old deeds and letters are some of the more important sources of information. Don't forget however the stores of information which the old people can give—Get them interested and then "pump them dry." Most important of all don't get discouraged yourself. How can you interest others, if you yourself are not alive with enthusiasm?

CHAPTER LXXXII.

By Helen Perry Maxwell, N. Y. City.

It may be interesting and perhaps helpful to the readers of Lewisiana to know what patriotic societies the descendants of this line of the Lewis tribe are entitled to membership in and how.

I have arranged the societies in three groups and after each group given the person or persons who give the right to membership. I have followed this with a brief statement showing the first few steps in the descent from which each one can trace his or her own claim from the records published in Lewisiana or by the assistance of its editor, who I am sure, will be glad to help any one writing him, but I think that those who apply should enclose at least a dollar with their application for a subscription to Lewisiana, whose success has made it possible to give these records. I hope I have not claimed anything that cannot be proved but my own opinion is that I do not know half what might be claimed.

First Group. Discovery.

I. Mayflower Descendant Society.

1. William Bradford, second "Signer of the Compact" and second Governor of Plymouth Colony.

Second Group. Colonial.

I. Society of Colonial Wars.
II. Colonial Society.
III. National Society of Colonial Dames.
IV. The Society of Colonial Dames of America.
V. Colonial Society of the Acorn.
VI. New England Society of New York City.
VII. National Society of New England Women.

1. Gov. Wm. Bradford.
2. Dep. Gov. Maj. Bradford.
3. Rev. Wm. Adams.
4. Maj. Wm. Whiting.
5. Rev. John Whiting.
6. Col. Samuel Whiting.
7. Benjamin Lewis.
8. Sergt. John Curtis.
9. Lieut. Joseph Judson.
10. Capt. James Judson.
11. Gov. Thomas Welles.
12. Capt. James Lewis.
13. Mr. Samuel Sherman.
14. Nathaniel Sherman.
15. John Porter.
16. Lieut. John Lewis.

Note. There is no military record of Benj. Lewis but he is included under the head of "founder of town and first church." Some may question Lieut. John Lewis but I find him so mentioned in the acknowledgment by notary of an old deed in 1774.

Third Group. Revolutionary.

I. Sons and Daughters of the American Revolution.
II. Sons and Daughters of the Revolution.
III. Military Order of Foreign Wars of the United States.

CHAPTER LXXXIII.

A NEW HAVEN, CT., CLIPPING.

Beckwith's Almanac has made its appearance for this year in a golden dress, commemorative of its 50th anniversary. On the front cover is a portrait of the founder of the Almanac, George Beckwith, dressed in the characteristic manner so well remembered by New Haveners. The book is edited by Mr. Beckwith's daughter, Mrs. M. L. B. Ewell Lewis and published by the E. B. Sheldon Publishing Company. The astronomical and mathematical data for the almanac is furnished by Prof. William E. Beebe of Yale. At the request of a number of patrons the column devoted to the moon's signs has been restored. The book is very carefully edited and much valuable information is contained between its covers.

JOHN LEWIS, Westerly, R. I., 1661.

CHAPTER CCLVIII.

It is with some hesitation that the records of this Book have been omitted this month and their place given to the following index for the first four generations of this family. This index, prepared originally for private use, is it is believed complete for all the records of this line which have appeared in the first six volumes of LEWISIANA. But its appearance here is due to another and more important consideration. The number of "Earliest Ancestors" is at present sixty-nine, of which eleven are assigned to Rhode Island. Most if not all of these are of one family probably. More or less of the family record of the seven sons of John (1) is known but in the third generation the family record is unknown of nine out of the twenty-four grandsons of John of Westerly, (this is denoted in the index by the star prefixed to the names) while in the next generation the record of twenty-nine as well as of the sons of the nine above is unknown. In "clearing this tract" the Editor feels sure many of these "Earliest Ancestors" will appear. While all records are welcomed and printed as soon as possible after their receipt the records of these grandsons and great grandsons of John (1) will be especially welcomed. Who will start the ball?

By Dr. John B. Lewis, Hartford, Ct.

Benjamin (21) fourth child of Eleazer (3) and Thankful (Lewis) Lewis, b. in Hopkinton, R. I., March 15, 1774. Benjamin's father removed with his famtly to Voluntown, New London-co., Conn., when Benjamin was about four years old. The child grew up to manhood there, when he moved to Canterbury, Windham-co., Conn., where he m. March 23, 1798, Zynthia Merritt, dau. of Thomas and Jane (Nichols) Merritt of Canterbury, formerly of Scituate, Mass. He resided in Canterbury until 1811, when he moved to Wilkesbarre, Pa., he having become interested in the experimental use of anthracite coal, especially for blacksmiths' forges. For a number of years immediately following the discovery of "black stones" (as anthracite was called) by a company of Connecticut pioneers, anthracite was not used except locally by blacksmiths. The discovery was made in 1762 and was reported in Connecticut on the return of the exploring party. The people were not convinced however, that the "black stones" would burn, and consequently the trade in anthracite was not attempted until about the date of Benjamin Lewis' removal to Wilkesbarre. In Sept. 1812 he moved to Orange-co., N. Y., and served in the army during the war of that year. He was stationed for a time at Staten Island. In 1823 he removed to North Java, Wyoming-co., N. Y., where he d. Dec. 11, 1843. His wife Zynthia d. Nov. 8, 1835. All his ch. were born in Canterbury except the youngest, Merritt B., who was b. in Wilkesbarre.

CHAPTER XIX.

By Frank P. Lewis, Seattle, Wash.

M. S. Lewis is authority for the records in Vol. II. p. 36 that Samuel (I.XI) was Samuel (49.XIV). What evidence does he possess, and if the families in Books XI and XIV had a common ancestor why are they not merged in Book VIII? [In the reprint of Vol. I it is shown that Samuel (I.XI) b. Feb. 9, 1775, was son of Samuel (b. May 20, 1744) and Sarah (Edwards) Lewis and gr. son of George and Sarah (Lewis) Lewis who were m. Nov. 22, 1733. Now Samuel (49.XIV) was son of Samuel (who had a gr. son, John Fordice b. 1714–5) and Joanna (——) Lewis and gr. son of John Lewis (Book VIII) Westerly, R. I. The prediction (v p 34, Vol. I) that in Book XIV would be found the ancestry of Sarah Lewis the gr. mother of Samuel (1.XI) has proved true. She is Sarah (2550.VIII) v p 134 Vol. VI. dau. of James and Abigail (——) Lewis and gt. gr. dau. of John of Westerly, R. I. Who can give the ch. of Samuel (49)? Ed.]

Randall (1.I) had sons Caleb and Rowland and gr. son Asa and George (1.XI) had gr. ch. Asa and Rowland b. some ten years after Randall (1.I) was married. Who can give the ch. of Amos Lewis v p 86, Vol. II?

CHAPTER CVII.

From Camp's History of New Britain, Conn.

Adonijah Lewis (188 v p 87, Vol. VII) home was at the south end of East Street on the farm inherited from his father. He worked upon the farm a part of the time, but he had learned the blacksmith's trade and this occupied a portion of his time. He was active in public matters and especially interested in the welfare of the new society of New Britain. He had a large family, several members of which became residents of the center of the society.

Three of the sons of Adonijah Lewis, having learned the tinner's trade, established shops in the New Britain parish. The business was at first conducted on East Street by Seth Lewis (246 v p 41 Vol. III) and p 70 Vol. III. for descendants) before 1800. A few years later, his brother Erastus Lewis (247 v p 41 Vol. III) had his tin shop on the west side of Main Street near where George Hart's house now stands (1889). Another brother Isaac Lewis. (251 v p 41 Vol. III) about the same time, established the tin business in Stanley Quarter. Erastus Lewis, after manufacturing tinware for some years on the west side of Main Street, commenced making clock weights and bells, and it was not long before clocks and bells were sold in the Southern and Western States with the brass goods and tinware. Lewis eventually moved his business to Waterbury.

FRANCIS LEWIS, Signer of the Declaration of Independence.

CHAPTER XXII.

By Julia L. Delafield, in her Biography of Francis Lewis.

In December, 1779, Lewis accepted the appointment of Commissioner of the Board of Admirality. He was also a vestryman of Trinity church. With these exceptions he retired altogether from public life, generally residing with one of of his sons.

His fondness for heroic poetry—for the songs of the Celtic bards, for which he was indebted to his first instructress, Miss Llanwelling, had no doubt fostered the love of adventure, the passion for liberty, which were leading traits in his character. When the storms of life, for him at least, were over, he returned to his early tastes, and they were the solace of his declining years. Literature was his amusement and occupation. He was so fond of Prior's poem of "Edwin and Emma" that he named two of his grandchildren after the hero and heroine. He frequently quoted from Hudibras, whose poems he knew by heart. Nor did he disdain romancers, Fielding and Richardson. Miss Burney beguiled him of many an hour which might otherwise have hung heavy on his hands. At the same time he warned his grand-children against the same indulgence. No man, he would say, should read novels until he was turned of fifty. He gave the same advice with regard to the condiments of the table. A healthy appetite in his opinion was the only safe stimulant and the only one needed. In the details of private life, from the arrangement of his toilet to the folding of an allumette, he observed the same precision which had characterized his mode of transacting public business. It is to their Welsh blood that his descendants are indebted for their neatness and for the administrative talent for which many of them have been remarkable. * * *

In his intercourse with men, Lewis was reticent and retiring. He never courted popularity, nor can I discover that he ever sought for office. That he was repeatedly elected to high places of trust was the result of his well-established character for judgment, integrity, and patriotism.

He lived to hear the children of his grandchildren give him his title of great-grandfather. A shock to his nervous system, occasioned by a fall, was the cause of his death in the ninetieth year of his age.

After his estate was settled, scarcely fifteen thousand dollars remained of the large fortune he had accumulated before the Revolution, the greater part of it spent in the service of the country.

It would be difficult to find so long a life with a purer record.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

By George Harlan Lewis, New York City.

In the spring of 1763, David Lewis, (99), (v pp 184, Vol. V.) with his brother Isaac, (103) then in his 18th year, went to New Boston, N. H., David was the fifth settler in the New Addition" which with other lands: was incorporated June 8, 1772, as Frances Town.

He settled upon lot 40, bought by his father, John (68) and deeded to David. Oct. 30, 1766, (v p 170, Vol. V.). David was chosen March, 1765, Surveyor of Highways of New Boston, when there were only paths. He was also chosen Selectman in 1769 and 1770. He was one of the most useful men after the new town was formed, holding office almost continually during his life. He constructed a saw mill in 1770 and a corn mill in 1773, which were of great assistance to the early settlers in the (then) wilderness. In 1777 he was "voted Town tressherer" and in 1778 continued. He was Moderator at the meetings of the Town, Aug. 31 and Oct. 1, 1772, as well as for the years 1794–1796–1798–1799–1800 and 1801. He was representative to the Legislature for New Boston and Francestown in 1782 and 1783, and for Francestown in 1795. He was selectman 1780 and with his brothers, Isaac and Asa, in 1784, (the three forming the board). He with Isaac (103), Asa (105), Samuel Dickerman and his wife, Bathsheba (106), Moses (122), and 12 others organized the second church, Jan. 27, 1773 on which occasion he was chosen Moderator and clerk. On March 8th they made choice of David Lewis and Wm. Starrett to serve the Table. He was Deacon from 1773 to 1810.

Previous to the formation of the church at Francestown he attended the church at Lyndeboro and had his three eldest children baptized there. Upon the Lyndeboro church records is the following: Aug. 6, 1772, Presented to the church by David Lewis and others, occasional communicants with this church; A Flaggon, Voted that the thanks of this church be returned to David Lewis and others, occasional communicants with us, now belonging to Francestown, for their liberality in providing and generously giving a Flaggon to this church, for the use and service of the table of our Lord and that they be served with a copy of this vote.

He was twice married and in the cemetery he lies with a wife on each side. His stone is large with Urn and weeping willow tree over the top. The wives stones are small. Upon his stone we read: "He was one of the first settlers of this place, very useful in promoting the good of society, in introducing and supporting the gospel, an affectionate husband, a kind father, a faithful friend, a firm patriot and a devoted and exemplary christian."

CHAPTER XIV.

BY AGNES SMITH LEWIS IN THE CENTURY FOR DECEMBER, 1896.

The question as to what was the mother-tongue of Jesus is not yet altogether settled, some holding that it must have been Greek, because three out of the four gospels are supposed to have been written in that language; and others that it was a Semitic tongue, probably Aramaie or Syriac, which was at that time the vernacular of Palestine. We shall try to place before our readers some considerations which have induced the most learned biblical critics of our day to adopt the latter hypothesis. But we must preface it with a short account of the Syriac language, taken partly from the introduction to the first edition of my translation of the Syriac gospels from the palimpsest manuscript which I had the happiness of discovering in the convent of St. Katherine on Mt Sinai in 1892 (v p 98, Vol. IV.), and partly from the works of the many writers who have lately discussed the subject in Great Britain, in France and in Germany. Syriac, or more properly Christian Aramaie, was the first language into which the New Testament was translated; and as the Greek text itself was written by men who habitually thought in Syriac, the early versions in this tongue have a closer affinity with the original text than those of any other can possibly have, not excepting the Old Latin.

CHAPTER XIV.

From Springfield, Mass., Homestead.

Mrs. Mary E. (133 Lewis) Bliss is herself a genius, with a romantic history. She has a natural gift for this kind of work (palmistry) and it would be very difficult to find another woman who could talk for 12 hours steadily, without stopping for anything but a cup of coffee, as she has often done. Mrs. Bliss' home is with her son at Florist's Rest, Drownville, R. I., a little town near Providence. The study of palmistry was at first merely a side issue in her life, her interests being more with cabalistic astrology and Christian science. She first studied the science of life with Sir Vatha, better known to the world as Dr. Merton of Harvard college. This was eight years ago, after the death of her husband, when she joined Sir Vatha's mystical society in Providence. Later she studied Ed Heron Allen's book on the science of the hand and visited the famous Cheiro, but her methods in reading hands are those of Sir Vatha rather than Cheiro's.

The knowledge of all these mysterious, yet kindred, subjects gives Mrs. Bliss a foothold that other professional palmists have not, and lends an added charm and interest to whatever she has to say about one's character. She not only knows every marked line in your hand at a swift glance, but at the same time she is deciding as to your temperament from the sound of your voice, your character from the look of your eye, your tastes from the style of your dress and making a score of rapid observations before you realize that she has had more than time to ask in what month you were born. She is remarkably observing and and quick witted and these qualities, combined with a wonderful gift of speech, and a splendid command of the English language, have made her a success in the profession she has chosen to make her life work. In explaining to the writer what methods she has always used in palmistry Mrs. Bliss said: "There's really nothing phenomenal about my reading people's hands. Anybody can do it; all you need is to study the subject under a good teacher and I have known people to get a fair idea of the art by simply studying it from books. I start way back with the Bible, where you remember in Job it is written, 'God set signs and seals in men's palms that they might be read by all men; you'll find that the hand is used throughout the Bible to express truth. Palmistry is very, very old, although it is only within recent years that it has received such marked encouragement from society.

Lewis of New Haven, Ct., is corresponding secretary of the Seamen's Friend Society.... Captain William Lewis, an old sea captain, whose fame as a hunter is widely known throughout the western part of the state, is probably one of the shrewdest coon hunters in Connecticut. Ct., has received as a present a new goverment map of the United States from William H. Lewis, son of Representative William I. Lewis, who, since his return to Washington. D. C., has obtained a position in the office of the sergeant-at-arms in the Senate.

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used; as b. for born; d. died; m. married; m. (1) first wife; dau. daughter; unm. not married; v. p. see page, etc.

Hints for Contributors.

In writing matter for the printer use only one side of the sheet, note paper preferred. In giving dates, give year, month and day whenever known. Write all middle names in full. Answer the following questions as fully as possible and give names and addresses of such people as you think may be able to complete the record but get it yourself if possible and spare the editor. Old newspaper files, tomb stones, family Bibles and records, official records of the town, school and church, burial certificates, county and probate records, old deeds and letters are some of the more important sources of information. Don't forget however the stores of information which the old people can give—Get them interested and then "pump them dry." Most important of all don't get discouraged yourself. How can you interest others, if you yourself are not alive with enthusiasm?

Family Record Questions.

1. Name in full; initials are often a source of confusion.
2. When and where born?
3. When and where married and by whom?
4. To whom married? Always give name in full and in case of the wife give her maiden name.
5. Give date of birth of your "better half or halves."
6. Give cause, place and date of death.
7. Names of parents-in-law, being sure to give maiden name of your mother-in-law.
8. Place or places of residence.
9. What is your occupation?
10. When and where educated?
11. What public office have you held?
12. What service in army or navy?
13. What traditions in your family?
14. Give any interesting events in family history.
15. Names of your children with places and dates of birth.
16. If they are married answer questions 3 to 15 inclusive for them.
17. Dates of death for ch. dying unm.
18. Names of your brothers and sisters with dates of birth and as much more of their family history as you can give or obtain from them the complete record.
19. Names of your parents. Be sure to give your mother's maiden name with names of her parents.
20. Dates of birth, marriage and death.
21. Names of your father's parents.
22. Dates of birth, marriage and death.
23. Names of children with dates of birth.
24. Any further history of these uncles and aunts that you can obtain.

BENJAMIN LEWIS, Stratford, Conn.

CHAPTER LXXXIV.

By Helen Perry Maxwell, N. Y. City.

On the records at New Haven, Ct., there is no mention of Benjamin (1) Lewis in the County Court Records and but one in the Colonial. This made Mar. 17, 1686–7, is on p. 35 of the Book of Possessions, commencing "The lands of Benjamin Lewis sometime planter and inhabitant of Wallingford as they are recorded to him——." Evidently a man of wealth as there were nine parcels of land and the records cover a whole page in the book.

Charity Curtis b. Apr. 14, 1781, wife of Silas (91 v. p. 24, Vol. I) Lewis, who was baptized Nov. 19, 1775, according to the record of Christ Church, Stratford, was sister of Isaac Curtis who m. Catherine (8 v. p. 23, Vol. I) Lewis. Orcutt and family record give different parentage from that given by Mr. P. C. Lewis on p. 24, Vol. I, viz: ch. of Robert Wells Curtis by his wife Phebe Curtis. Silas and his wife both died in Madison, N. Y., where all their ch. were born.

JOHN LEWIS, Westerly, R. I., 1661.

The records published in this Book in November, 1896 issue have occasioned many calls for the records of the father and other brothers of Sylvester (101). In response to these demands the following chapter gives the record of Jonathan (50) the father of Sylvester (101) as it appeared in the first part of Vol. II.

CHAPTER CCXLIX. (SAMUEL).

By LADD J. LEWIS, NASHVILLE, TENN., (NOW UTICA, N. Y.)

Jonathan (50) son of Samuel (8) and Joanna (——) Lewis lived first in Richmond, R. I. In 1743 he gave an "Old Colony mortgage" of a tract of land in Exeter, containing 37 acres. The consideration of this mortgage was "thirty-foure pounds in Bills of Publick credit of said colony."

The following is taken from the town records at Exeter, R. I. "At a Town meeting called by a special act of assembly and held at the Dwelling House of Stephen Austin in Exeter, the 22nd Day of March, A. D. 1742, Job Tripp Esq. was chosen Moderator of said meeting. Voted that Jonathan Lewis is chosen packer, Gager and Sealer of weights and measures, Engd."

At the same place, June 7, 1743, he was chosen to the same office and also "supervaiser of the Highways and Vewer of fences." He was again chosen to the latter office June 5, 1744.

Dec. 6, 1743, it was "voted that the names of all those persons presented to this meeting in order to be put into the box for Jurors be excepted of by this meeting and that the same be put in the box according by whose names are as followeth, viz." Then follows a list of 43 names among which are Jonathan Lewis and Jonathan Lewis, Jr.

His will dated June 4, 1783, names four children and also a grandson Stephen who was son of his oldest son John who died in service in the Revolution. ch. b.

CHAPTER CVIII.

An Interesting Connecticut Clipping.

Lemuel Lewis, who is accredited with the distinction of having built the first house in Plainville and with giving the town its name, celebrated his ninety-second birthday anniversary on the 17th of last month at the home of his son, Charles Lewis, at Coventry, Broome county, N. Y.

About sixty friends were his guests on the occasion and they presented him with a huge easy chair. A poem was read by Mrs. S. B. Wilder, the versifyer of Broome county.

Mr. Lewis, who has a number of relatives living in the town he founded, was born December 17, 1804, at Wolcott, this state. Here he remained until fifteen years of age, when he located where since has grown this town. Mr. Lewis dwelt in Plainville about sixteen years, going to Coventry November 12, 1835. The old gentleman is an ingenious mechanic and still spends a number of hours each day in his workroom.

CHAPTER XCVI.

From "In Memoriam" by John Lewis, Oak Park, Ills.

Mary Maria was born at Suffield, Conn., Mar. 10th, 1846, and died at Oak Park, Ills., Dec. 11th, 1896, of pneumonia. She was laid to rest beside Adelaide, in Forest Home Cemetery. Although Mary was not a robust person she was never sick and her demise was entirely un-anticipated.

The outlines of her life may be briefly sketched. Our mother died Sept. 17, 1854, almost to a day of the same age as Mary. Our aunts kept house for father until Mary was about fourteen or fifteen, after which she assumed that responsibility herself. Father sold his farm in 1864, reserving twelve acres, upon which he built a small house and farmed it in a small way. Here father and Mary lived until 1872, when he sold this place also, and they came to live with me in Chicago. In 1873 we came to live in the house at Oak Park where I now reside. Father [Warren (237 v p 21, Vol. VII.) youngest son of John (195) and Mary (Phelps) Lewis.—Ed.] died here in 1878. Mary has thus been a member of my family for twenty-four years, during which time all but one of the children have been born, and three have grown to manhood and womanhood. She lived a quiet, unobtrusive life, but still a helpful, cheerful and busy one. No one of the family circle can recall ever having heard her speak a cross, unkind or impatient word. She never complained in regard to herself and never found fault in regard to others. Something of her life here and the estimation in which she was held by her Oak Park friends are given in the words of Rev. R. F. Johonnot, spoken at the funeral service.

"She was a typical New England woman. She had what might be called the Puritan temper, and it is from this standpoint of the Puritan character that we can best interpret her life. There was about her a reservedness, a reticence about speaking of herself which is peculiar to this temperament.

The key to her life may be found in the great Puritan word 'Duty.' Her life was one of loyalty to her duty as she saw it, and that duty consisted chiefly in a rare devotion to her friends and family. For them no sacrifice of herself was too great. She loved high things: music, poetry, good literature. She was a student and learner, loving knowledge. It has been well said that the highest test of life is the conduct in the home. Here, where all restraint of public opinion is thrown off, we see people as they really are. Tried by this test, the life of Mary Lewis rings true.

CHAPTER LXXVI.

From Louisville, Ky., Commercial.

Col. Fielding Lewis, who married Betty Washington, was an active citizen of Fredericksburg, and is said in its official annals to have owned nearly half the town.

The famous portrait at the Lewis homestead, "Marmion," that has been mistaken for that of Martha Washington, is in reality that of Betty Washington, the wife of Colonel Fielding Lewis. This portrait was printed in the Century Magazine, in 1889, as a portrait of Martha Washington, but in volume 4 of the "Memoirs of the Long Island Historical Society" it is remarked: "It is one of the many curiosities of Washington portraiture that the portrait of Betty Lewis at Marmion, the Lewis homestead in King George, should be going about the world as that of Martha, Gen. Washington's wife!"

Continuing, the Memoirs say: "In 1773, Col. Fielding Lewis was chosen a member of the House of Burgesses. The defect in his eye prevented his entering the field in the Revolution. His title, 'Colonel,' was probably earned by his activity in the manufacture of arms at the 'Gunnery' established by the Assembly in his town, whose patriotic ladies made cartridges while their male relatives were in the field. Col. Lewis freely advanced his means in this work and was never repaid except in depreciated paper. However, he had large lands in the West. He died in January, 1781, and was buried in the vestibule of St. George's Church, of which he was a vestryman. Washington's diaries and letters show his affection for his brother-in-law, and confidence in his judgment. The portrait of Col. Fielding Lewis at Marmion, a companion to that of his wife, shows that his veracity would not allow the artist to omit the defective eye. He was an able man, and his descendants, known in every part of this country, are generally persons of character and influence."

The Lewis family is very proud of the family crest, which is now and has been since the marriage of Col. Fielding Lewis and Betty Washington, a combination of the Lewis and Washington family crests. The Lewis crest was a dragon's head and neck, holding in its mouth a bloody hand. The Washington crest was a shield bearing three mullets or spurs above two red bars. The Fielding Lewis family crest is a combination of the two, with dragon's head as a hanger, and bearing the motto, "Omne solum forti patria est." "Every land is a brave man's country."

Col. Fielding Lewis owned a large lot of land in Kentucky, now Henry and Warren counties. These lands are now very valuable, and many years ago there was a judgment against the occupants of these lands in favor of the Lewis heirs, but it was allowed to drop, and the matter is now in the hands of some prominent attorneys who are looking into the matter.

CHAPTER XXIII.

By Helen Evertson Smith in Century for December, 1896.

In a fragment of a letter written by Helen (second daughter of Gilbert R. Livingston of Red Hook (now Trivoli) on the Hudson) to her mother, she says that "we last night attended a great party at Cousin Stuyvesant's; one hundred and twenty-five persons were present, and all of us related to each other." Of course this was nothing remarkable because the few great families of the colonies had intermarried so freely. . The "Livingston clan" alone might easily have numbered as many, no less than twelve families bearing the name having their winter residences within a short distance of one another, and most of them not far from Trinity church. Of these, besides the chancellor, there were the families of his two brothers, John R., a man of singular cultivation and intellectual power, and Henry, familiarly known as "Colonel Harry," who had gained distinction in Washington's army. Not far away were the houses of their sisters, Janet, the widow of General Montgomery; Gertrude, wife of Governor Morgan Lewis; and a third, the wife of General Armstrong. Brockholst Livingston, son of New Jersey's patriotic war governor, was a judge in the city, and very popular in society; and his brilliant sisters, one of whom was the wife of Chief Justice John Jay, were often there.....“We have attended a dinner or an evening party on every week-day this four months, and sometimes both.” As the fashionable dinner hour was three in the afternoon, this did not imply such late home coming as the same thing would now do.——“We were not often at the same house more than once in each month, and were always at the house of a relative. All have vied with each other in efforts to make it pleasant for us.”

ISRAEL LEWIS, New York City, 1769.

CHAPTER I.

By Maj. Edwin Lewis, Sausalito, Cal.

My gr. father Israel (1) I believe to be a descendant of Francis, the Signer of the Declaration of Independence. Israel in old age was called "Gov. Lewis." He was Sheriff of N. Y. county in 1815. His brother Jonathan (2) was appointed in 1807 "High Sheriff of Richmond" by Gov. Morgan Lewis (his uncle I believe although the Editor seems to doubt it with his cool demand for proofs). This commission which I have reads as follows:

People of theState of New York——to all to whom these presents shall come, greeting, know ye that we have committed to our well beloved Jonathan Lewis, Esq., our county of Richmond, with the appurtenances to keep during the pleasure of our council of appointment. In testimony whereof, we have caused these our letters to be made patent and the great seal of our state to be hereunto affixed. Witness our trusty and well beloved Morgan Lewis, Esq., Governor of our said state, General and Commander in Chief of all the militia and Admiral of the navy of the same, by and with the advice and consent of our said council of appointment, at our city of Albany, the fifth day of March in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seven and in the thirty-first year of our independence.

Signed, Morgan Lewis.

Passed the Secretary's office the 6th day of March, 1807, signed, Th. Tillotson, Secretary.

PHILIP LEWIS, of Greenland, (Portsmouth,) N. H., 1650.

CHAPTER I.

By George Harlan Lewis, New York City.

In my search for information of some of my line, I have gathered many facts which (I think) should be published for the benefit of those they would interest and save search necessary to obtain the information. Although it may not be as full as some might desire, I give it as I have arranged it, but do not claim it is complete. It may reach the eye of some one who can add to it. Savage's Dic. says: "Philip of Portsmouth, 1665, probably Dover, 1672, Representative 1680 in first Assembly under Provincial Gov't. His will was made Nov. 1, 1700."

The first I find of Philip is in N. E. H. & Gen. Reg. Vol. IV, p. 285, which says: "Philip Lewis probably of Dover was a creditor of John Milles estate, of Boston as appears from the settlement, Oct. 22, 1651." Next in Vol. VII. p. 385, "Philip Lewis and Wm. Follet bought 2 3 of a saw mill at Bellamy, 16, 5, 1651, of Wm. Pomfret for £ 4–0–0." In same Vol. p. 256. In 1653, "Philip Lewis and Henry Langstaff had a lawsuit about land at Bloody Point. He probably lived on the Portsmouth side of the line." Dover Ancient Landmarks, says, "Bloody Point was at the Southern entrance to the west branch of the Piscataqua river which was made Newington May 12, 1714." Hackett's Portsmouth Records, p. 22, says, "In 1652, Mar. 14, Robert Pudington with Philip Lewis were to search out the nearest part to cut out heyway, to meet that our nabors of Hampton have made."

N. E. Reg. Vol. 4, p. 247. He was made a freeman at Dover in 1655. Hackett's Portsmouth Records, p. 37–38. "He signed petition of Town meeting 27 Mar. 1656." "Philip Lewis subscribed 1–10 to support of minister, Dec. 12, 1658."

Brewster's Rambles about Portsmouth, p. 25, "Philip Lewis was one of the Committee to apportion common lands to the inhabitants and Jany. 22, 1660, had 105 acres in the distribution. He was at Greenland. He evidently came there between 1657 and 1660." Dover Records, N. E. Reg. Vol. 4, p. 250, "He became a resident of Bloody Point in 1670."

He was probably a brother of George of Casco Bay, not a son, as his son Jotham probably married George's dau. Mary, (v p 44, Vol. VII.) George came to Casco Bay in 1640 and Philip was at the mouth of the Piscataqua river in 1651 when Philip, George's son, was a boy. His will made 1, Nov. 1700, on record at Exeter, N. H., reads:

"I, Phillip Lewis of Greenland in the Province of N. H., in N. E., etc., etc. Whereas in a former will I did give and bequeath unto my son Abraham Lewis a certain tract of Land and meadow ground, and Salt marsh, being on ye northerly side of ye Brooke, on ye N. side of my dwelling house, I do in this my last will order it for my son Abraham's portion, and whereas my son Abraham hath sold ye said tract of land to my son John Johnson, I do in this my will consent to ye sale thereof to my said son John Johnson ye bounds and limits thereof as is mentioned in said deed of sale notwithstanding what I have formerly given my son Abraham; I now further give him, five pounds more to be paid in current pay. Item, I do give and bequeath unto my three grand children, John Lewis, James Lewis and Philip Lewis, my son Jotham Lewis, his children, all my rights of land of whatsoever sort on ye E'ly side of ye Roadway; as also a piece of land on ye W'ly side of ye said; where their father's house standeth, according to the Grant of sd. Lands as also six acres of salt marsh lying in ye town of Hampton. As likewise I do give them my sd. grand children two eights of my saw mill with all priviledges thereunto belonging, on ye same tearms and conditions as Samuel Heyns hath his part which sd. lands and marsh is to be divided between my sd. grand children; as my Executors shall see meet as they arrive at the age of 21 years. Item, I do give and bequeath unto my son John Johnson and my daughter Hannah, my dwelling house and out houses with ye land where they stand with all Rights of Land and meadow ground or marsh whatsoever not disposed of already, to them and their heirs, as also my Corn Mill and Saw Mill with the rights and privileges thereunto belonging. And furthermore I give unto my sd. son John Johnson and my daughter Hannah, all my movable Estate of what sort or kind both within door and without, movable, and immovable of what sort soever. And further, my will is my son John Johnson shall pay unto my grand daughter Hannah Lewis, ye daughter of my son Jotham, ye sum of ten pounds in current pay equivalent to money in a years time after my decease. And further my will is and it is to be understood that if my wife continues after my decease my estate which I have in this my will given to my son John Johnson and Hannah, his wife, shall be so ordered and improved so as may be for ye comfortable maintenance and support of their mother above said during her natural life to be at ye ordering of my Cousin John Tucke and James Philbrooke whome I appoint as overseers concerning ye ordering of ye said Estatefor my wife's maintenance as above said. And further my will is and I do hereby appoint my son John Johnson and my daughter Hannah, his wife, to be sole Executor and Executrix to this my last Will and Testament.

I do hereunto set my hand and seale ye first day of November, A. D. 1700.

Signed, PHILLIPP LEWIS.

BOOK LXXXVIII.

JOHN LEWIS, Portsmouth, N. H., 1660.

CHAPTER I.

BY GEO. HARLAN LEWIS, NEW YORK CITY.

Savage's Dictionary says, "Perhaps he was a son of Philip." He was evidently wrong if we read Philip's will aright as his son was named Jotham. John Lewis was, with others, fined £10, for building on and appropriating portions of the town commons to their own use without order, licence or town grant, Jany. 13, 1660. [Brewsters Rambles about Portsmouth.]

He signed a petition with Philip and other inhabitants to the Gen. Court of Mass., Oct. 9, 1665. [N. H. State Papers, Vol. 1, p. 286]

In same Vol. p. 456, the deposition of Thomas Cobitt, age about 30 years. "That I, being in the house of my father-in-law, John Lewis, on Saturday night last, about 9 or 10 o'clock, that then Mr. Joseph Rayners came to aforesaid house, a design to quarrel, began to abuse my father Lewis, and told him Mr. Mason was coming, and a Governor with him, and now he should see Maj. Waldron and some of the rest turned out, and he hoped to have as much power as any man upon the island, also that he was a man come in this ship which would buy the whole island, and our houses over our heads; at which my father Lewis, laughed, and told him he should not take his house from him, nor no man else, etc. Sworn this 2, Oct. 1682. Note, this document throws Savage out as Philip's grand children were John, James, Philip and Hannah. Same Vol. p. 489, in a list of those named as Jurymen, for the Trial of Edward Gove and accomplices is John Lewis of Great Island, 1682.

Rossiter, eldest son of Francel C. O. Lewis, of Plantsville. Ct., has received official notice of his appointment as alternate for a West Point cadetship on recommendation of Congressman Henry. This is virtually an appointment as Eno of Simsbury, who was principal, could not pass the examination. The examination for entrance takes place in March. ....Francel C. Some Suggestions Concerning Lewis Records.

The very common reply to requests for the family records of a person or of some family is the statement that he or she is so busy a person that they cannot give the time. They are glad to see the effort to preserve all that belongs to the name Lewis; they can give the dates etc. desired but really are too busy but will sometime. All the more reason why they should give a few minutes to these matters of such moment, not only to themselves and their fame but to all others related to them. Example upon example might be given to illustrate this point from the records already gathered in LEWISIANA which are as yet but a mere drop in the bucket of the whole of which some day we shall be so proud—the Records of the Lewises. A single quotation must suffice.. It is by Mrs. Julia Delafield in her Biography of Francis Lewis (Book XL).

"Not many years hence my children will say, 'if mother were here she could settle this question, she must have been acquainted with the hero of this adventure; she would tell us what was the standing of this family when Pearl street was the fashionable quarter.' Before I take my departure I will put them in possession of such of my recollections as may gratify innocent curiosity, and spare them the regret felt by my mother and her family that my grandfather, the late Major-General Lewis, left no manuscripts. He could have given us the reminiscences of his father, Francis Lewis, who, born in the reign of Queen Anne, had taken an active part in the old French war; was a member of the first Congress, and had the honor of inscribing his name on the great charter of the nation.

General Morgan Lewis himself had served with distinction through the war of the Revolution, and the war of 1812 and 1814. He had been Chief Justice and Governor of the State of New York; he had filled every office that his fellow-citizens in his native state had it in their power to bestow upon him. He did not refuse when we urged him to write his memoirs, but he always put it off till a more convenient season, which season, of course, never arrived."

Is it any wonder that we do not know positively the names and dates of birth of the grand children even of this great man of our name? Or that those who honestly think themselves his descendants are to be met with at every turn? How much labor half an hour's work would have saved!

Again the reply is that they have most of the information desired but will not send until they can obtain one or two more dates which they lack. Quite a reasonable reply it may be said, and yet during the few years of LEWISIANA's existence it has been answered time and time again: "I am very sorry to tell you that I have lost my records. A fire totally consumed, etc." "My precious and nearly completed record has been lost. I cannot find it." "Some one to whom I sent my record for additions has failed to return it. I have no idea where it is." "I have waited two years to get two more dates and now in despair I send my record to you incomplete." Lo! something in it reminds the Editor of the contents of a pigeon hole and behold both the dates are at hand.

Lewises send your records and let them as quickly as possible be preserved in a permanent form so that no loss by fire, death or failure of friends to return can destroy them. Is there any surer way?

"If you can place these records I have sent among the Lewises of your knowledge I will take two copies of your paper and can pledge you three or four subscriptions." The Editor could not place them but three years later a worker in "the Lewis tract" wrote, "I send you a fragmentary record which I have looked at off and on for nearly four years without adding to it. Perhaps you can." It furnished the key to the former records but death, change of residence and loss of interest brought then no gain from it to LEWISIANA subscription list. A mercenary view truly but one on which depends the continuance of LEWISIANA and its work under the present management. Is there any other better or more reasonable way for all of us? If not, send in your records (or copies of them). Let there be one center, one headquarters, where may be found all that is known of the whole Lewis race, so that we may one and all be proud sharers of that final achievement however distant it may seem to-day—the Records of the Lewises.

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used; as b. for born; d. died; m. married; m. (1) first wife; dau. daughter; unm. not married; v. p. see page, etc.

BENJAMIN LEWIS, Stratford, Conn.

CHAPTER LXXXVI.

FROM THE BRIDGEPORT, CT. Standard.

Died—In this city, Jan. 29, 1897, Mary, widow of Edwin Wood, aged 85 years.

Thus passes away another life-long resident of Bridgeport, the last of her generation, at the advanced age of 85 years and 8 months. Born, reared and spending all her days, except the few years of her married life, which were in the city proper in the old home, the home of her parents on Old Mill Green, on the south side of the King's highway, not many rods from the Benjamin Franklin mile stone. In this house, so soon to be the home of aliens, were born seven brothers and sisters, children of Elijah and Elizabeth (Hubbell) Lewis, her parents. Here she had lived alone since the death of her sister, Sarah Jane Lewis, about five years ago. Here she passed her days in a peaceful, quiet existence in an unassuming way, leading an upright, Christian life, beloved by her relatives and friends. Much of her time was passed in reading. When other matter was scarce she read her Bible. I found her thus engaged one Sunday two years ago, and that winter she had read thoughtfully both Old and New Testaments, making the third time she had been through the book since she lived alone. For about one and one-half years her sight had been growing dim by the formation of cataracts on the eye, but still she passed the time alone in her regular routine. The public were made familiar with her name by her generous gift of $20,000 to the Bridgeport hospital for the building of the new wing, which she has lived to see completed and in good running order, with perfect equipments. Money donations for a hospital seemed to be a family mania. Her mother's sisters, Julia and Susan Hubbell, gave the ground and money for starting the building of a hospital on their homestead then located in the limits of Stratford. Sarah Jane Lewis, her sister, gave at her death $5,000 to endow a free bed in the the same building.

How few of the directors, doctors, nurses, patients and others interested in that new surgical ward, know the source of the money or where it was obtained. Their brother, John Lewis, a farmer on the old homestead, at his death about 12 years ago, left his sisters his money. Most of it had been gold dust obtained from the bed of the American river in California—dug from the earth—separated from the sand by washing—stored up in chamois belts worn on the person for safe keeping—brought home across the isthmus at the peril of their lives, taken to Philadelphia to be coined and then stored in the banks of Bridgeport to accumulate. He was a "forty-niner."

The father of Elijah Lewis was Isaac, son of Benjamin, son of Benjamin, in Stratford, in 1667, whose house was where the fine Sterling mansion now stands.

Elizabeth Hubbell, the mother of Mrs. Wood, was the daughter of Samuel Hubbell and Mary Beardsley, the daughter of Abraham Beardsley, 2nd, and Bertha Curtis.

The line of Mrs. Mary (Lewis) Woods seems not to have been worked out at all as yet. According to Orcutt in his History Isaac Lewis (187) b. Sept. 1734, d. Aug. 31, 1804, in his 70th year, son of Benjamin (71 v. p. 74, Vol. III) and Sarah (DeForest) Lewis and gr. son of Benjamin, the head of this branch of our name, m. 1761, Anne Thompson who d. 1767 and had son.

CHAPTER LXXXVIII.

Rev. Isaac Lewis, D. D.

The following additions to his record as given on p. 164, Vol. IV. are given. Harper's Biblical Cyclopedia states that he entered the ministry March, 1768, was ordained at Wilton, Ct., Oct. 26, 1768, and resigned June, 1786. In Blake's Biographical Dictionary we read that "During his residence at Wilton the memorable struggle of the American Revolution occurred, and deeply sympathizing with his countrymen, he spent much of his time in the camp encouraging and comforting them." Henry P. Johnston in Yale in the Revolution states that "he was invited to the chaplaincy of Bradley's Fifth Continental Regiment in 1777 but declined the appointment. Rev. Ichabod Lewis (his cousin. Who can give his record?—Ed.) of the same class, was appointed in his place, but his name is not on the rolls of the Fifth." [v. Ichabod (229) p. 85, Vol. III.] "When dismissed from his church in Greenwich at his own request, he was 72 years of age, but he still continued to reside among that people until the day of his death, and until he was ninety years of age, he occasionally addressed them. The great age which he attained commanded the veneration of all who knew him, and his excellent character, Christian integrity, urbane and courteous manners, together with his social virtues and great learning, secured their esteem and love." (Blake's Biog. Dict.)

In addition to ch. given in record on p. 99, Vol. VI. he had a dau.

802. Susan m. Joshua Baker of Berkley co., Va. Wm. Terrell Lewis in his Genealogy of the Lewis Family says, Joshua Baker Sr., was one of the first settlers of Kentucky, was in the Convention from Mason county with Thomas Marshall (brother of Chief Justice John Marshall) and General Philomel Thomas. He commanded General Wayne's spy company of the Kentucky troops in 1794, was in some of the fighting in 1815 at New Orleans and died in 1816. He had sons

CHAPTER CCLII. (James.)

An Rhode Island Obituary.

James Lewis who died in Exeter on Feb. 4, 1897, was born in that town within two miles of the place of his death, Oct 10, 1810, and was therefore over 86 years of age. He was the son of Col. Nathan B. (1380 v. p. 5, Vol. V.) and Sally (Richmond) Lewis, and was the oldest of a family of six children. His father, Col. Lewis, died at the age of 40 from brain fever, when the subject of this sketch was not quite 20 years old. His father was a farmer and left little for the maintenance of the widow and children except a stony farm, the live stock thereon and a little household furniture.

Being the oldest of the children, the care of the family naturally fell to the lot of James, the only other boy among them being then but four years of age. From that time on his life was one of steady, laborious toil. He always followed farming, which he made profitable to a certain degree and until quite recently owned something over 1000 acres of land in the western part of the town. He was regarded as the most successful farmer in the town and continued in the active daily personal supervision of his business until about five or six years ago.

He was twice married. His first wife, Mary Sisson, died in 1849, and his second wife, Frances M. Hall, died in 1888. He had seven children, two of whom died in infancy and two others in early manhood. Three survive him. These are Nathan B. Lewis, Justice of the District Court of the Second Judicial District; Mary F. Barber, wife of George F. Barber of Exeter, who was the only daughter, and John N. Lewis of Voluntown, Conn., Town Treasurer of that town and Senator in the Connecticut Legislature from the Eleventh Senatorial district. (v p 85, Vol. VII.)

Deacon Lewis, as he was called, was a man of marked individuality of character, and was widely known for his rugged honesty and good judgment in practical affairs. For more than 25 years he had been a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Hope Valley, though his earlier religious affiliations were with the Six Principle Baptists. He was earnest and decided in his religious convictions, and had little patience with liberal orthodoxy and the higher criticism of the Scriptures. Although a strong Republican, he was no politician, and always sturdily refused office.

He doubtless took too serious a view of life and its duties to get his proper share of enjoyment from it as men ordinarily measure enjoyment. With him life was no holiday parade, but all his energies were dedicated to a courageous industry, which was not devoid of material rewards, and his religious consolations were much like those of his Puritan ancestors and very satisfactory to him.

Partly on account of his advanced age and partly on account of his sterling honesty and rugged individuality of character resembling in many ways the granite hills of Exeter, among which he was born, lived and died, he will long be missed in the community where he was known as one of its most substantial citizens.

CHAPTER CCLIII. (SAMUEL.)

By Myron S. Lewis, Leadville, Colo.

In July, 1888, I visited the location then called Lewis City and took some photographs of the places mentioned on p. 69, Vol. VII. by S. D. Lewis. In the place were three houses, and on the south side of the road opposite the oldest house was the cemetery, but the stones were rough and no marks to show whose resting place they marked. I also took a photograph of part of the cemetery. A man named Barber, who occupied the house opposite the cemetery, said that the house was built in 1745 by Jonathan Lewis. Another house standing just west of the first, he said was built in 1765 by Jonathan's son Daniel. The Jonathan must have been (98) and Daniel (136). The first house had been enlarged as the place of addition could be readily seen, as one part was covered with clapboards and the old part was shingled on the side. The original part might have been built in 1734 by Jonathan (50). As I have the negatives of the views taken. I can furnish prints from them if desired.

WILLIAM LEWIS, Farmington, Ct.

CHAPTER CX.

By David N. Camp in his History of New Britain, 1640–1889.

The jewelry business begun by William B. North about 1820, and continued by him and William A. Churchill until Mr. North's death in 1848, and afterwards by Churchill, Stanley & Co., has been continued in the same locality until the present time. D. C. Pond who was a member of the firm in 1850 retired in 1853; Charles Warner a few years later and in 1863 James Stanley went out, leaving of the former partners only William A. Churchill and Charles M. Lewis (286 v p 121, Vol. IV). E. B. Dana who had been in charge of the New York office was soon admitted as a partner, and the firm name was changed to Churchill, Dana & Co. Mr. Dana retired in 1871 and William W. Churchill and Frederic Wessell became members of the firm, and its name was changed to Churchill, Lewis & Co. William A. Churchill died in 1874 and in 1885 William W. Churchill retired and the firm was afterwards Churchill, Lewis & Wessell, the estate of William A. Churchill retaining an interest, and Charles M. Lewis and Frederic Wessell being the active partners. Mr. Lewis died in 1886, leaving Mr. Wessell the sole active partner. The interest in the firm held by the Churchill estate was purchased and Charles J. Leward of New York, became a partner, the firm name being Lewis, Wessell & Leward. During nearly seventy years the successive firms doing business at this locality have maintained the high character of their goods, and the company has become one of the oldest firms of manufacturing jewelers in this country.

CHAPTER XII.

From the N. Y. Evening Post.

There is an old stone church down south. There are old stone churches everywhere, built where churches entered far more into the marrow of every-day life than they do now, and when every-day life offered fewer complications. But this particular stone church is unique, the "show place" save the mark, of the neighborhood, and the neighborhood is far-reaching, and includes the town of Pendleton, two miles distant, a town that deserves more than one paragraph to itself. "Have you seen the stone church?" the visitor will be asked by those seeking to do the hospitalities, even before other local properties are mentioned.

A good many wigged old cavaliers are buried by the stone church—colonels and majors of Revolutionary fame, who consulted together with bated breath and stern resolve, and hesitated not to lock up suspected Tories in the box-like, odd little Pendleton jail, a structure as quaint and uncompromising in its way as the stone church itself. Of a truth, one thinks, if the samples of architecture left behind them may be taken as indication of the character of the men who caused their building, those old folk of Pickens County must have been made of stern, unyielding stuff indeed. And yet there are big rooms built with an eye to many a frolicsome quadrille or stately lancers in the plantation houses around, and good, spacious kennels to accommodate packs of hounds for pleasure-loving huntsmen. There are massive silver candlesticks in the wide piazzed, unpainted houses of the vicinity, and massive mahogany furniture, and a good picture or two that a collector might covet, and that might bring hard money in a practical market.

"Been through the buryin'-ground? I know about most all the fine monuments,' volunteers the boss after the church has been inspected.

"This is the neatest kept-up place in the ground," he goes on, alluding to a square lot, trimly hedged and curbed and having numerous tablets with the name "Lewis" in raised letters. "Mighty fine people; 'bout the best round here," he declares. "Everybody gives them that name. There's a tall Miss Lewis teachin' school close to where I live, and she's a mighty good scholar. My two little girls is going to her, and they're learnin' powerful fast."

Noah Hobart, gr. son of Rev. Peter Hobart, the first minister of Hingham. He seems to have remained there for in the Biographical Sketches of Yale Graduates it is stated that "Lothrop Lewis of Fairfield, Ct., m. July 26. 1727. Sarah Sturgis widow of Ebenezer Wakeman, b. Feb. 10, 1699, Fairfield, Ct., son of Capt. Joseph (of Rev. Samuel) whom she had m. June 24, 1724. He d. Sept. 25, 1726, at Fairfield. He had one son. He was deputy to the General Court in 1724-25-26. She d. May 15, 1756, in her 52nd year."

(Ebenezer Wakeman was graduated from Yale in 1720 and received the degree of M. A. three years later. In his time students' names were arranged according to their social rank, and his stands first in his class.—Ed.)

In these old papers I found that Sarah Sturgis was known as "the stall-fed beauty because her father (Jonathan Sturgis) owned so many cattle." She brought into the family a silver tankard and porringer which now over 170 years old are in the possession of a descendant, Mr. J. H. Brewster of Derby, Conn.

CHAPTER XCIX.

A Brooklyn, N. Y. Clipping.

Beautiful with views of natural scenery and redolent of the spirit of old Yankee life the lecture by the Rev. J. J. Lewis of Boston on "Old New England, the Nation's Childhood Home and Holiday Abode," will be long remembered by those who heard it. For more than two hours last night Mr. Lewis engrossed the attention of a large audience in Association Hall.

With an historical introduction the audience was well prepared for a tour, as Mr. Lewis expressed it, "through picturesque New England." The journey began with the valley of the Connecticut, than which no other stream, Mr. Lewis said, not even the Hudson, has so many associations that endear it to the hearts of Americans. Views of historic New England churches afforded Mr. Lewis opportunity to speak of the development of music among the Puritans beginning with the time when each man sang on what key he pleased and as loud as he pleased.

For scenery Mr. Lewis remarked that it is not necessary to go outside the limits of New England to satisfy the desire for natural beauty. The speaker proved this by a long and interesting series of views of the upper Connecticut valley, the White mountains, the Green mountain state, Lake Champlain and the Maine coast.

CHAPTER LXXVII.

From Genealogy of the Lewis Family in America.

The following account is furnished by Bishop Meade:

"Among the families which belonged to Pohick church (v p 11, Vol. V.) was that of Mr. Lawrence Lewis. the nephew of General Washington, the son of his sister, Betty, (v p 105, Vol. VII), who married Mr. Fielding Lewis (v p 119, Vol. VII). Mr. Lawrence Lewis (v p 88, Vol. IV.) married Miss Custis, the grand-daughter of Mrs. Washington. In many of the pictures of the Washington family she may be seen as a girl in a group with the General, Mrs. Washington and her brother, Washington Parke Custis.—The residence of Mr. Lawrence Lewis was a few miles only from Mount Vernon and was called Woodlawn. After the desertion of Pohick they also attended in Alexandria, and some time after the establishment of St. Paul's congregation and the settlement of Dr. Wilmer in it, they united themselves to it, and were much esteemed by Dr. Wilmer, as he was by them. After some years they removed to an estate near Berryville, in what was then Frederick, now Clarke County.

Mr. Lewis was one of the most amiable able of men by nature, and became a sincere Christian and a communicant of our church. His person was tall and commanding, and his face full of benignity, as was his whole character. I wish some of our friends at a distance could have seen him in the position I once beheld him in the church at Berryville when I was administering the holy communion. Some of his servants were members of the church at that place, and on that day one of them came up after the white members had communed. It so happened that Mr. Lewis himself had not communed, but came up and knelt by the side of his servant, feeling, no doubt, that one God made them and one Saviour redeemed them. Mrs. Lewis was also a zealous member of the church, a lady of fine mind and education and very popular in her manners. Like her grandmother, she knew the use of her hands, and few ladies in the land did more with them for all church and charitable purposes, even to the last days of a long life. They had three children. Their son Lorenzo (v p 54, Vol. V.) married a Miss Coxe of Philadelphia and settled on the estate in Clarke, but died some years since. The two daughters married—the one Mr. Conrad (v p 89, Vol. IV.) of New Orleans, and the other (Frances Parke), Mr. — Butler of Mississippi or Louisiana (Bayou Gonla, La., is his post office). A numerous posterity is descending from them."

Washington Lewis, son of Lorenzo of Audley, near Berryville, Clarke county, Va., has the portraits of Colonel Fielding Lewis (v p 119, Vol. VII) and his wife, Betty Washington. One of Lorenzo Lewis' sons married a daughter of Reverdy Johnson of Baltimore, Md.

FRANCIS LEWIS, Signer of the Declaration of Independence.

CHAPTER XXIII.

From Barrett's Old Merchants of New York.

The history of Francis Lewis should be as familiar to New Yorkers as the Lord's Prayer.—Soon after his arrival, he went into partnership with Mr. Edward Annesly under the firm of Lewis & Annesly. The house went largely into foreign commerce, and Mr. Lewis married his partner's sister, Miss Annesly, who was a belle in her day.—

The store of Lewis and Annesly was in Dock street, near the Merchants' Exchange, that then stood on Broad street, between what is now Pearl and Water, in the middle of the street. The Custom House stood near, what is now the northeast corner of Whitehall and Pearl, and ran back nearly to Bridge street. Mr. Lewis had not been here long, before he took rank among the first merchants in the city. He used to make voyages in his own vessels, acting as supercargo; sometimes he went to Europe, sometimes to the West Indies. Once he visited Russia and established connections; once he was shipwrecked upon the coast of Ireland. During the early part of the commercial career of Mr. Lewis, New York had a good trade. In 1749 there were 157 vessels owned here, the registered tons of which were 6,500. They took 1,220 men to man them. At the time of the French war of 1755, Mr. Lewis had become engaged in the interior trade, in furs, etc. He also acted as agent of the British American Colonies in getting supplies for the troops. He was at Oswego when it was surrendered to General Montcalm. He was also included in the surrender, and was delivered by the French general to the head chief of the Indians. They murdered every prisoner except Francis Lewis. He so won upon the Indians that they spared his life. He was able to converse with them, so that they could comprehend him, owing to the resemblance of their language to the dialect of the ancient Welsh, which Mr. Lewis understood. There is a tradition that a Welsh prince once settled in the West, and this gave rise to the beautiful poem of "Madoc" by Southey, the poet.

The British Government gave Mr. Lewis, five thousand acres of land for his conduct in the contest at Oswego. The Indians wanted to set him free. The French general would not consent, but sent him to Paris as a prisoner. He was shortly after exchanged, and came home to New York City.

By his marriage with Miss Annesly, he had several children, but three survived their infancy—Francis, Ann and Morgan.

In all the relations of life which the great old merchant sustained as merchant, as statesman, as husband, father and friend, there is no act of his whole life, embracing nearly a century, that will not bear the most searching scrutiny except one. He disinherited his daughter Ann for marrying a British Officer. The feelings of the stern old patriot got the better of the father. Captain Robinson, a British naval officer, was floating about the town, and fell in love with Miss Lewis. It was mutual. The old Declaration Signer would not listen to it. There was nothing left for the lovers except to run away, or get married by the Rev. Charles Inglis, at Trinity Church, who was afterwards Bishop of Nova Scotia. Captain Robinson took his wife to England. They became parents to two sons and four daughters. The eldest daughter married a Mr. Robinson of the East India Company service. A second married I. Bird Sumner, the then Bishop of Chester. Bird Sumner is now Archbishop of Canterbury. A third married Sir William Moncrieff, afterwards a Lord of Session in Edinburgh. One of his sons was Judge of the Supreme Court of Calcutta. The fourth daughter married a Bishop of Calcutta, (successor to the celebrated Bishop Heber).

The English descendants of the signer, by his daughter Ann, are well placed. He did not live to see it.

JOHN LEWIS, Ireland to Virginia.

CHAPTER LIV.

By Mrs. Burton Harrison in N. Y. Sun.

A batch of old letters, documents, and memoranda from the pigeonholes of Monticello lie before us. For a number of years they have been in possession of a descendant of Mr. Jefferson. They are assembled without method; and in dates, subjects, and autographs, form a curious patchwork of apparently unrelated parts. No one of the names signed to them is unknown to history; many are those of the great founders of American independence. One is from a Czar, others are from famous Generals, diplomatists, scientific men, authors, statesmen, patriots, and clever women of Europe and America. The letters range over the whole of Jefferson's public life. To the student of Americana the collection is of especial value and importance; to all Americans it should be of interest. It is our purpose in reproducing it to try to make what is missing clear to the casual reader through the flashlight of biographical comment.

ANDREW LEWIS.

After Lord Dunmore had started the burning of Norfolk (finished by the State troops themselves) and had further vented his spleen against the Virginians by harrying the coast of the Chesapeake Bay, he finally retired with a poor little army of 500 men and intrenched himself upon Gwynn's Island, a part of the county of Matthews, which proved to be the last refuge of the last Royal Governor of Virginia. On July 8 a Virginia force, under Gen. Andrew Lewis and Col. Adam Stephen, took post opposite the island and the next day opened a battery upon it. The English fleet was driven out of range, Dunmore's flagship, the Dunmore, was damaged, and some men were killed. Dunmore himself, wounded by a splinter in the leg, exclaimed amid the wreck of china and furniture in his cabin: "Good God, that I should come to this!" During that night he silently sailed away, to appear no more upon Virginia soil. A feature of this occasion was that it enabled the victorious General, Andrew Lewis, to settle a score of some standing against Dunmore. Andrew Lewis, of Irish-Huguenot descent, was second of a family of four sons, all renowned in border warfare and of note in the Revolutionary army.

While all the four sons of the pioneer won distinction, one of them. Col. Charles Lewis, falling in the bloody fight with the Indians at Point Pleasant in 1774, Gen. Andrew Lewis rose to a most conspicuous place. He was the typical border warfarer, the idol of his followers, and in many respects the Stonewall Jackson of his day. Washington suggested that Lewis, instead of himself, should be made Commander-in-Chief of the American armies. He had fought with Washington at Great Meadows and commanded the Virginians in their rout of the Indians under the brave Shawnee Chief Cornstalk at Point Pleasant. It was after this affair, when Lewis's brother Charles was among the slain upon a field strewn with the pride of the border families, that, smarting under a sense of the failure of Lord Dunmore, in command of the other column of troops, to come to his relief, that Lewis passionately accused Dunmore of complicity with the Indians. Two years later the success at Gwynn'sIsland brought Lewis his revenge. A statue of this noble son of the Revolution, dressed in fringed hunting shirt, may be seen in the grounds of the Capitol in Richmond.

CHAPTER XII.

By J. Winthrop Coles in the Philadelphia Press.

Philadelphia society has always been noted for its ancestral pride; consequently in their anxiety to prove descent from distinguished ancestors many families have assumed coats of arms to which they have not the slighestt claim. For the information of those interested in this subject I propose to give a short account of each family that has an unquestioned right to bear arms, showing the descent from the ancestor to whom the arms were granted or confirmed.

The right to bear arms is confined to lineal male descendants of an ancestor who was granted arms in the regular way, either by the sovereign or the Herald's College. Where marriages have occurred with heiresses their arms are quartered by the descendants with those of the paternal line, and thus in time some arms get to be of great genealogical value. In Philadelphia there are perhaps not more than a dozen families that can prove their right to the use of a coat of arms.

LEWIS.

Another prominent Welsh family that came to Pennsylvania during the colonial period was the Lewis family. This family is descended in a direct line from the Princes of Powys. This is shown by ancient documents and records and heralds' visitations, which have been carefully examined and compared by Philip Physick Syng Conner, Esq., and Thomas Allen Glenn, Esq., both of whom are familiar with Welsh pedigrees, and to some extent with the Welsh or Cymeric language, in which most of these old records are written.

The first of the Lewis family of whom anything definite is known was Bleddyn ap Cynfyn, Prince of Powys, who was murdered in 1072. From him are descended the Lords of Nannau, in Merionethshire, Wales.

M. W. Lewis concludes a long article in the Philadelphia Press on "Do You Wear Glasses," as follows:—

To the art of optics we owe our escape from nearly all the results of the defective conditions of the eye. The grinding and fitting of lens and frame is to-day a flourishing business that has reached a nicety here in America far exceeding that which they have attained abroad. The Chinese were in this, as in most things, the first to make a crude use of the lens for the purpose of aiding vision. The gradual growth of our present perfect eyeglass and spectacle from the primitive horn apparatus first worn, has been commensurate with the development of the science of optics and of their applied use in respect to the eye, and represents much inventive and mechanical genius.

A First Book on Writing English. By Edwin Herbert Lewis, Ph. D., Principal of Lewis Institute, Chicago, also a member of the Faculty of Chicago University.

Eight years ago, the Rural New-Yorker began to talk about "Chemicals and Clover," or the system of farming conducted by D. C. Lewis, and others, near Cranbury, N. J. The theory of this system of farming is that chemical fertilizers and grass sod, used in five year rotation, will fully take the place of stable manure.

Mr. Lewis, after fifteen years of experience with the system, is fond of saying; "I will take any farm in the country that is reasonably level and has anything in the way of 'foundation' no matter how poor it may be, and double its producing capacity at a profit."

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used: as b. for born; d. died; m. married: m. (1) first wife: dau. daughter; unm. not married: v. p. see page, etc.

To the Orphan Asylum, the Protestant Widows' society and the Associated Charities is given the sum of $1,000 each and to St. Paul's church the sum of $2,000.

All the residue is to be divided equally between the hospital, the Orphan Asylum, the Widows' society and the Ladies Charitable society, each to have an equal share with the others.

All Mrs. Wood's holding of stock of the Adams Express company is given to Theodore H. Blackman who in company with James Staples is appointed executor of the provisions of the will.

CHAPTER LXXVIII.

BY MRS. BURTON HARRISON IN N. Y. Sun

It is something to hold in one's hand an original order penned on June 27 1776 of the famous "Committee of Safety for the Colony of Virginia." This body was a directory appointed by the convention after the flight of Lord Dunmore from the State Capitol to commission officers, devise military movements, issue warrants on the Treasury and control all commanding officers of troops. Charles Lewis of Albemarle county to whom is extended their commission as Colonel of the second Battalion of Virginia militia, was a member of the convention of 1776. His nephew, Meriwether [v chap 55 p 40 Vol VI] Lewis was for a time private secretary to Jefferson and afterward the leader of the famous Lewis and Clark [v p 105 Vol. IV] exploring expedition to the west as far as the Pacific Ocean. A letter from Washington at Valley Forge in 1778 urges upon Col. Charles to give up his thought of resigning from military service. In this collection [v p 139 Vol. VII] are letters to him from Gov. Patrick Henry and others from the gallant General Andrew Lewis of Augusta, his ranking officer, whose brother, also a Col. Charles Lewis had fallen at Point Pleasant. The statement [see next issue] signed by Nicholas Lewis in 1795 gives explanation of the subsequent career of Col. Chas. Lewis:

THE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY FOR THE COLONY OF VIRGINIA.

To Charles Lewis, Esquire:

Whereas, by a Resolution of the General Convention, It is Ordained that the March of the two Battalions of Minute Men and Militia ordered to the assistance of North Carolina be for the present countermanded and that the Committee of Safety should give such directions respecting them as they might judge most for the publick service. And whereas by a Resolution of this Committee it is directed that the said minute men and militia should be immediately drawn forth into active service and employed for the Defence and Protection of this Colony. Therefore by virtue of the power and authority to us given by the aforesaid Resolution of Convention and in pursuance to their appointment. We do by these presents constitute and Commission you the said Charles Lewis, Esquire, to be Colonel of the second Battalion, so to be employed as aforesaid. You are therefore to act as Colonel of the said Battalion, during the continuance in service by duly exercising the officers and Soldiers under your Command, taking care that they be provided with Arms and Ammunition as the resolutions and orders of the Convention direct. And you are to pay a ready Obedience to all orders and Instructions which from time to time you may receive from the Convention, Committee of Safety or your Superior Officers agreeable to the regulations adopted for the Militia of this Colony. And we do require all Officers and Soldiers under your Command to be obedient and aid you in the Execution of this Commission according to the true intent and purport thereof.

Married in New York City Jan'y 21 1897, Howell Lewis Williams of Bristol, R. I., and Lucy B. dau. of the late Joseph G. Cooke. Mr. Williams (v p 153 Vol. VI) claims on his father's side a double Lewis line to Robert of Gloucester-co., Va., and on his mother's side descent from Edmund Lewis of Lynn, Mass. His grandparents Capt. and Mrs. Augustus N. Miller (v p 9 Vol. VII) have observed the 60th anniversary of their marriage in the Waldron homestead at Bristol, R. I. by Rev. John Bristed, Mar. 2 1837.

FRANCIS LEWIS, Signer of the Declaration of Independence.

CHAPTER XXIV.

FROM BARRETT'S OLD MERCHANTS OF NEW YORK.

Notwithstanding his extensive commercial operations, and with all parts of the world, and the fact that he personally attended to them as for instance when he went to Russia, he established commercial relations, as agencies, not only in every port between St. Petersburg and Archangle but in every port in the north of Europe; yet he found time to look after the interests of his city and his country. He was elected a delegate from this city to the Constitutional Convention that met here in 1765, and he gave his support to every measure adopted by that body in opposition to the odious Stamp Act passed by the British Parliament and when attempts were made to put the law in force he withdrew from business and went to reside at a country seat he owned at Whitestone in the town of Flushing, L. I. He removed back to New York in 1771 for the purpose of establishing his son Francis in business under favorable auspices which he did under the firm of Francis Lewis & Co. He again gave up business when hostilities commenced in 1775. In April of that year he was elected a delegate from the New York Provisional Congress to the Constitutional Congress at Philadelphia, and was continued for 1776 when he rendered his name immortal on the continent of America by signing the Declaration of Independence. He was employed by Congress to import military stores from Europe and to do other secret acts of an important character that only a merchant could have done. In the summer of 1776 while he was at Philapelphia, his family removed to Flushing. In that year his dwelling was plundered by a party of British light horse; and his valuable and extensive library was destroyed. Mrs. Lewis fell into their power and was kept for several months. Through the exertions of General Washington she was released but she had suffered so much that her health was destroyed, and she soon after died. In May 1777 he received avote of thanks from the State for his long and faithfull services to the country, and in October of that year he was elected to the Constitutional Congress. In 1778 he was appointed to the same office for the last time, and soon after his retiring from Congress that body appointed him a Commissioner of the Board of Admiralty, which he accepted.

Up to the time of the Revolution Francis Lewis was the first among the merchants and also the most wealthy. He was a king among them and he gave all he had for the cause of his country. He periled everything and he lost everything. The close of his days were spent in this city at 26 Cortlandt street. Although he sacrificed the bulk of a large property in the cause of his country yet he left a considerable estate to his descendants. He is hardly mentioned during the later years of his life in any way. Probably he took no part in public or private business. He died on the 30th of December 1803 aged 90, and was buried in Trinity Churchyard. That was a great age and is good reason why he is scarcely remembered by any of those now living in the city. He left a name to his descendants more precious than gold. He enobled his race and name, for there is no patent of nobility that will sooner be recognized in America through all time to come, than to be able to point to the list of signers of the Declaration of Independence and say, "There stands the name of one of my ancestors."

BY MRS. BURTON HARRISON IN N. Y. SUN.

JEREM'H BAILEYS, July 25th, 1776.

To Colo. Charles Lewis:

SIR:—You are .o hold the Companies of your Battalion (now with you) in Readiness to march as soon as Part of the 3d Battalion of Regulars comes to your Relief. You are to give your two Companies on the north side Peanketank Orders to march, so that they may join you at New Castle about the Time you reach that Place. Your Companies stationed at James Town you may order to meet you at Richmond— Your Orders you will receive from the hon'able the Council, by them you will regulate your future Conduct. As I have made you acquainted with the Service you are to be ordered on, I cannot help taking the Liberty of advising you to be on your Guard against Surprise— The enemy you have to deal with are dexterous in reconoitering and taking Advantage of any Irregularity on a March, or bad Disposition in Encampment, be attentive in both these cases, and make Use of a sufficient number of good scouts, by which Means you will not only Guard against Surprise, but may have it in your Power to surprise the Enemy— Should you be able to force the Enemy to Submission, or should they offer you before you reach their Country such Terms as your Instructions and the good of the Country would enable you to accept of, suffer me to advise you before you put a concluding Hand to such stipulations to make a Point of having delivered to you, Mr. Cameron, Nathaniel Gist and every other Emissary that have been stimulating the Savages against us. Death is the slightest punishment they are entitled to, and should you should you have them in your Power you should put them to Death, rather thad suffer them to be risque'd, or make their Escape—

May God direct you and make you servisable to your Country. I am

Your Obedt. and humbl. Servt.

ANDREW LEWIS.

This relates to an outgrowth of a scheme said to have been concocted between Lord Dunmore and a Pennsylvanian named John Connolly, by which the Indians were to divert the attention of the Virginian forces from the English by harassing the frontiers of the Southern States. Conolly, with his two aids, Allen Cameron and Dr. John Smyth, both Scotchmen, were taken near Hagerstown, and in their luggage were said to have been found papers, money, and a letter from Dunmore to an Indian chief which exposed the whole plan. Although the leaders of this movement were arrested, the swing of the pendulum went on. Serious mischief was wrought to the American cause, through the alleged British compact with the savages. Col. Christian finally marched with a body of Virginian troops into the country of the Cherokees, and, after burning four of their towns, forced the Indians to pray for peace.

Lord Dunmore always indignantly denied complicity with the affair in question, of which latter-day historians have indeed, acquitted his lordship's memory. The coupling of Nathaniel Gist's name with that of Cameron, in the letter from Andrew Lewis must be attributed to some partisan rancor of the day, joined to misapprehension of actual occurences: since Col. Gist: the son of the intrepid pioneer who led Washington into the wilderness in 1753 was a true patriot and gallant officer throughout the revolution.

He had David Lewis, who died in 1840. He had David, who, as well as his father, was a prominent citizen of Philadelphia. He was for many years the secretary of the old Mutual Assurance Company (Green Tree), trustee of the University of Pennsylvania etc,. etc. He died in 1895 and had (now living) the Rev. William Phillips Lewis, D. D. Edmund Daach Lewis [the arrist] and Clifford Lewis (now secretary of the Mutual Assurance Company). Clifford Lewis has David, Clifford and William Burr Nash Lewis. The ancient arms to which those here mentioned are entitled to bear are thus emblazoned: Or a lion rampant azure.

It will be noticed that the ancient Welsh arms here given do not show either crest or motto. These were not used until a much later period than when the arms were originally granted. Crests and mottoes were for many years after they came into use borne by individual members of a family as a distinctive mark: younger sons especially would often use a different crest from the one borne by the head of the family. This crest and others used in the same way (as a mark of difference) would show in the course of time where they remained intact for a number of generations to what branch of the family the bearer of such a crest belonged.

CHAPTER XII.

BY J. H. JAMES.

When about twenty-five years of age, Richard Slocum Lewis gave himself to God and the Methodist Episcopal Church. He spent some years in the southern part of Connecticut where in 1838, he married Louisa M. Harris of Salem. About forty years ago he became a resident of Rockville. Here he at once became prominent as well as active, in church work. He filled acceptably the offices of class leader steward and trustee, remaining in the last position until his death. He was a Methodist of the old style, delighted in the love-feasts, prayer-meetings, class-meetings and indeed all the services of God's house in which his place was rarely vacant. He loved to witness for Jesus and his testimony was always interesting, often thrilling. His last addresses given only a short time before his departure, were specially impressive. Not less remarkalbe were his prayers in social circles and at the family altar. Their fervor and appropriateness will long be remembered. The cause of temperance and prohibition had in him an earnest and uncompromising advocate. His patriarchal interest in every good work caused him to be honored by all classes with the title "Father Lewis." To each of the three edifices in which successively the Methodist society has worshiped, Father Lewis contributed liberally as measured by his ability. The recent effort to remove the debt from the church property was a matter of deep interest to him and great was his joy that he lived to see the house in which he delighted free from incumbrance.

His last illness was brief but severe. The consolations of religion abounded to him and his end was peaceful. His wife, three sons, a daughter, twelve grand-children and a great-grandson survive this man whose memory is precious to them and to many.

BY WM. FRISBIE LEWIS, OAKLAND, CAL.

The pastor of the Dutch Reform Church of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., has sent me the following record of baptism from the record of that church. It is, he says, all that appears about the Lewis family.

Ch. of Thomas Liewes and Anna Maria VonderBerg.

I Cornelia bap. June 11, 1718, sponsors Geriet Liewes and Cornelia Liewes.

II. Leonard bap. Feby 4, 1720, sponsors, Leonard Liewes and Elizabeth HardenBerg.

III. Magdalena b. Sept. 11 1723, sponsors, Hendrick VonderBerg and Magdalena Knijd.

Leonard (4) and Elizabeth (Hardenburg) had ch. something as follows, I feel sure but cannot prove it.

I. Cornelia b. Nov. 9, 1692. v. Cornelia (7) p 28, Vol. VII.

II. Gerardas (Gerardus of Book XXI.)

III. Thomas (v record above.)

IV. Leonard.

The spelling "Liewes" is the same as that of Gerardus of (Book XXI) on marriage at Kipsburgh. Among the Dutch Gerardus is spelled Gerord and also Geriet. Further one of the sponsors was a Hardenburg, same name as Leonard's wife. [Is it not possible the sponsors in the last two cases were the gr. parents on each side? ED.]

I find that Leonard Lewis was a Captain of N. Y. City militia, also that Barent Lewis of Ulster-co., also a Captain of militia was in 1690 ordered to Albany by Jacob Leisler with 20 men and provisions.

Are not these Barent (3) and Leonard (4) sons of Thomas (1)?

CHAPTER III.

BY EDWIN LASSETTER BYNNER, IN THE BEGUM'S DAUGHTER.

It was almost a relief one morning, when old Congo came in and asked for leave to go to the Pingster feast. Hester and Francina [daus. of Jacob and Elsje (Tymins) Leisler v p 28, Vol. VII. ED.] exhausted their ingenuity in tricking the old man out, and he went off with a firm strut, fluttering his ribbons, and charging them not to fail to join the crowd of lookers-on at Pingster Hill.

In Congo's absence Hester went that afternoon, to answer a knock at the door.

"You!"

She stepped back into the shadow of the doorway to hide the blush caused by her own joyous outcry, while Barent's (Barent Rhynder the son of the well-to-do blacksmith of Albany) beaming gratification to this unexpected welcome was somewhat dampened by the look of chill demureness with which, the next moment, she bade him come in.

By the rest of the family he was received in the heartiest way. Aside from the fact that he was Cobus's friend and a special favorite of her late husband, he was endeared to Vrouw Leisler by many kindly offices during the dark days of her affliction.

CHAPTER VI.

By Major Edwin Lewis, Sausalito, California.

My father, John Roome Lewis (5 v p 143, Vol. VII) a merchant, went from New York to St. Louis and in 1853 removed to California. Through his wife, Ann Eliza Price, we claim descent from Zechariah Price of Sussex, N. J., of the Revolutionary Army and from Rodman M. Price, b. Sussex-co., N. J., Nov. 5, 1816, Govr. of N. J., 1854-7 and the first alcalde under the American flag in California.

My brother Col. Rodman Price Lewis (7) was the first cadat appointed to West Point from California and though decrepit physically is still practicing law in San Francisco. I attained some military honors and titles in "The Sixties" and some political honors from the people since. As merchant and exporter I have explored all the shores of the Pacific and now nominally retired, reside in Sausalito across the bay from San Francisco.

Of late I have become much interested in genealogy and hope through LEWISIANA and its readers to trace my ancestry to Francis Lewis, the Signer of the Declaration.

To Our Readers.

The delay in commencing Volume Seven of our family paper has continued throughout the entire year in spite of all efforts to get the issues and the calendar together again. The disastrous fire toward the end of April which completely destroyed the printer's outfit, completed the work. In spite of it all LEWISIANA lives.

April issue has been reset and before this is read will have been printed and mailed to its faithful friends. June issue, an index number, will appear shortly. More than that we intend to continue another year. Let all renew their subscriptions as promptly as possible and let those in arrears immediately settle. LEWISIANA owes much to its printer for its continuance and now when misfortunes have come to him let us cheer him with prompt payment for each month's work. This can only be done if our friends will renew their subscriptions promptly. How many new allies can you enlist in the work? Why not try to get at least one new subscriber? It is hoped that our readers will send all Lewis items and clippings they may observe in their reading to this office. Thus LEWISIANA might reap the benefits of the most extensively equipped press clipping bureau. Don't let our paper suffer for lack of records or clippings! Don't for the sake of a dollar risk its continuance! Now for Volume Eight —may it be the best and most successful yet.

Announcement.

Records have been promised for many Books and in many lines as yet not worked out. It is hoped that the coming Volume may see the fulfillment of many if not all of these promises. Lists of Lewises on the Revolutionary Rolls of New York and the New England States are being prepared. The index of Lewis authors and publications has proved a much more laborious task than anticipated and is still too incomplete to publish. If any reader knows of such a work, he will greatly aid in the work by sending its title, publisher, etc. (v p 162. Vol. VI.) Have you, Mr. Lewis, written a book or books? Why not send a complete list of them and help the editor in his task? A few minutes will do the work for you while he must gather a bit here and a bit there.

Family Record Questions.

1. Name in full; initials are often a source of confusion.
2. When and where born?
3. When and where married and by whom?
4. To whom married? Always give name in full and in case of the wife give her maiden name.
5. Give date of birth of your "better half or halves."

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used: as b. for born: d. died: m. married: m. (1) first wife: dau. daughter: unm. not married: v. p. see page. etc.

CHAPTER XCII.

FROM GENEALOGY OF THE LEWIS FAMILY.

Major Isaac Lewis Baker (803 v p 132, Vol. VII) was born in Mason county, Ky., in 1792, was a lawyer by profession and died in St. Martinsville, La., in 1830. He was a soldier in the war of 1812, was in the battle of the River Raisin in 1813 as an ensign. He was afterward made captain of a company of the 44th Regiment of the regular army, was at the taking of Pensacola and was in all the fighting about New Orleans from Dec. 23, 1814, until after Jany. 8, 1815. Being the oldest captain in the 44th Regiment at New Orleans, General Jackson so managed as to give him the command of a regiment during the siege. He commanded the 44th Regiment which was formed on the extreme left. He was, after the battle of New Orleans, one of General Jackson's aide-de-camps.

Major Isaac L. Baker was a most excellent man, was loved and respected by all who knew him. At the time of his death he was a sugar planter in St. Martinsville, La., and had been a member of the Legislature of that State. He was a very able writer and wrote a great deal for the public journals of his State under various names. The one over the signature of "Aminiadab Sledgehammer" gave him high standing as a writer.

He m. in 1820 Charlotte b. 1792, dau. of Major Wm. T. Jr. and Mary (Hipkins) Lewis (Book XIX). She survived her marriage only a few months and died childless. She was one of six sisters all of whom were highly accomplished, very beautiful and intelligent. Notwithstanding, they were, it is said, votaresses of city fashions, which doubtless shortened their days, for only one of them ever lived to be twenty-eight years of age, while the most of them died under twenty-four. They all died in the vicinity of Nashville, and all are (except Eliza, the wife of Governor Wm. C. C. Claiborne) buried at the old homestead, Fairfield, situated in the vicinity of Nashville. But one of them left living descendants.

134.II. John Wood b. 1801.

Frances Machen (133) m. 1816, John Sharpe Rowland, b. 1795, in Rutherford-co., N. C., her second cousin, son of Thomas and Mildred (Lewis) Rowland. They settled in Spartanburg District S. C., where he was for many years tax collector of the district and a merchant at Spartanburg Court House. In 1839 he moved to Cass, now Barlow co., Ga., near Cartersville on the Etowah River, where he engaged in farming and trading. He was the owner of a very valuable mineral springs in said county, known as "Rowland Springs," which was very much resorted to during the summer season by thousands of votaries of pleasure and seekers of health. He was Superintendent of the Western and Atlanta Railroad at the time of his death, which occurred Sept. 26, 1863, at Atlanta, Ga.

In an obituary notice in the Weekly Mississippian of Sept. 30, 1863, it is stated that

Frances M. Lewis, his wife, is a woman that has no superior, and but few equals in point of great fortitude, untiring industry and perseverance. She has taken a great many premiums of money, premium plates, silver cups, etc., at the agricultural fairs in Georgia by the exhibition of her own work such as woolen blankets, cotton blankets, negro cloth, carpeting, coverlets, comforts, jeans, diapers, plaids, flannels, patchwork, etc. James Charles Rowland, in speaking of her indefatigable industry, once facetiously remarked that "when his brother John's wife got to heaven, should there be any spinning and weaving going on there, she would be placed at the head of that department."

Dr. John Wood (134) Lewis m. 1835 Maria dau. of Samuel Earle of Pendleton, S. C. He was quite a talented man. He had been honored with a seat in the State Legislature of South Carolina from Spartanburg District, and during the Confederate war he was a member of the Confederate Congress from Georgia, and was a delegate to the Cincinnati Convention. He had been for some years the superintendent of a railroad in Georgia, and was a very distinguished Baptist divine.

FROM HARPER'S BIBLICAL CYCLOPEDIA

John W. Lewis, an eminent Baptist minister of Georgia, was born near Spartanburg, S. C., Feb. 1, 1801. He studied medicine and practiced with success, but was drawn to the ministry and ordained in 1832. About 1840 he removed to Canton, Ga., where he was pastor for a time and afterwards of other churches in Cherokee County. In such secular concerns as he undertook he exhibited good judgment and sagacity. During the civil war he was senator in the Congress of the Confederate States and had much to do with the establishment of the Supreme Court of Georgia. As a preacher he was instrumental in the conversion of many souls. He d. June 1865, in Cherokee-co., Ga.

IN MEMORIAM.

Died in Canton, Mass., Feb. 27, 1897 Mrs. Sarah B. (Lewis) Curtis ae. 65 years, 3 months and 3 days. Mrs. Curtis (v chapter 75) the last of the Lewis family at Canton was much interested in the effort to get and preserve the records of the Lewises. This interest was the cause of an acquaintance which ripened into so strong a regard as letter followed letter (for we never met personally) that the few briefly penned lines telling of the great loss to her husband, friends and neighbors brought to the editor the feeling of personal grief. A friend, a co-worker in this great task has gone. Alas how many of such friends have become during the last year but memories of the past! Slowly the sad words are re-read and although it means extra work and the loss of hours which belong to rest or daily toil all work on LEWISIANA is laid aside for the day as a slight tribute and token of regard for the memory of her who has gone.

FROM THE CONN. Courant.

The Rev. William Lewis Bostwick, who died at Stamford, Conn., Mar. 13, 1895, was a graduate of Trinity College in the class of 1851. He studied theology at the Berkeley Divinity School and his first ministry was in Newtown. He was afterwards rector and missionary in Illinois, from which he returned to Connecticut in 1863, his last regular parochial work being in Northfield. For nearly ten years before his death he resided in Fair Haven, his bodily infirmity not allowing him to undertake regular clerical duty. He was much interested in the work of the church and labored faithfully as he had the strength, and he also found time to make himself proficient as an artist. Mr. Bostwick was a brother-in-law of the Rev. F. D. Harriman of Windsor. (v. p. 136, Vol. V. ED.)

CHAPTER LXXX.

BY MRS. BURTON HARRISON IN N. Y. Sun.

The collection (v p 139, Vol. VII.) contains this interesting memorandum relating to Col. Charles Lewis, and signed by Nicholas Lewis in 1795:

Early in the Spring, of the Year 1776 Colo. Lewis marched from Albemarle with an intention, to go to Williamsburg with a party of Minute Men. After proceeding about 60 miles Colo. Patrick Henry met Colo. Lewis and informed him he had been at Williamsburg with a Co. of Men & it was unneccessary for him to proceed, this was in consequence of the conduct of G. Dunmore,, about the time he went on Shipboard, soon after the Minute men were ordered into duty below, after being on service in that Quarter About 2 Months Colo. Lewis was Ordered with his Minute Battalion to go on the expedition Against the Cherokees, & I believe he did not return 'til some time in Decbr. Colo. Charles Lewis Afterwards went into the Continental Service & after his resignation was appointed Colo. Commandant at the Barracks in Albemarle & died while doing duty under that Appointment the 26th of Febry. 1779.

The above Statement is true to the best of my Recollection, Novbr. 16th. 1795. NICHOLAS LEWIS.

"It was a pleasant incident in the life of General Lewis, that in his old age he was present at the marriage ceremony of one of his own grandsons with a granddaughter of his old friend, Lieut-Governor John Broome, who in 1804 was his associate in the State government."

"I accompanied (in 1832) my sister Mrs. Rawlins Lowndes, and her family to the General's lake in Delaware county, where my eldest brother had been established for some years."

And finally in connection with the record in the following chapter:—

"Francis Lewis, Junior had won the affections of Miss Ludlow—whose family boast to this day that not one of their names is to be found in the ranks of the Republicans. The brothers of this lady objected to her choice on the ground that it would not be agreeable to be connected with a man whose father would certainly be hung. The lovers, however, were constant, and were finally married with the consent of both families."

CHAPTER XXVI.

FROM BARRETT'S OLD MERCHANTS OF NEW YORK.

The elder Francis worshipped at Trinity, and was a vestryman from 1784 to 1786. His eldest son, Francis Lewis, was a man of influence in his day, but his name was overshadowed by the more illustrious one of his father. He afterwards became a partner, in 1800, of Augustus H. Lawrence, under the firm of Lewis & Lawrence, at No. 40 Wall street. They were insurance brokers at first, but afterwards extended to stock and insurance brokers. They made a large fortune in the business. He was born about 1742. He married Elizabeth Ludlow, a sister of Daniel Ludlow, one of the most eminent merchants of New York in the last century. By this marriage there were several children. Morgan died young and unmarried. Juan Francis Lewis was the second son: he married Susan Tucker, a sister of Fanning Tucker. He did a large business at No. 87 Maiden Lane as early as 1801. He left one child, a daughter, who married Doctor E. G. Ludlow, one of our most eminent physicians as well as respected citizens and a son of the Daniel Ludlow whose sister Francis Lewis married.

Another son of Francis Lewis was Gabriel Ludlow Lewis. He married Ann Champlin, a daughter of John Champlin, of the famous house of Minturn & Champlin.

Another son, Horatio Gates Lewis, named after the old General Horatio, married Eliza Ludlow, a daughter of Gabriel Ludlow, Esq.

Edwin Lewis died young. Anna Lewis married Thomas Battelle, an extensive merchant in the West Indies. Eliza Lewis married Samuel G. Ogden, of whom I wrote a lengthy sketch. She has numerous descendants. Cecilia Lewis died single. Emma Lewis is single, and is yet living. Francis Lewis dieu about 1814, aged seventy-three.

CHAPTER XLIII.

BY GEO. HARLAN LEWIS, N. Y. CITY

Of Christopher Lewis, (3) I find in Middlesex Deeds, transfers of property in Lancaster, at various times. He removed to Malden, probably for safety after the Indian raid and massacre of his sister's family in 1675.

In Vol. X p. 606, Christopher (3) and Isaac (6) some time of Lancaster, sell to John Moore, first division of meadow, July 10, 1696.

In Vol.XII, p 156–7, Christopher Lewis of Malden sells to Isaac Lewis (6) of Rumney Marsh, 1½ acres of meadow land in Lancaster. Deed dated Feb'y 22, 1697, signed by Christopher and Grace Lewis. In Vol. XII, p 331, Christopher Lewis)6) and Josiah White (7) sell to Nathaniel Wilder, lot of William Lewis (1) in 2nd Division, Jan. 25, 1698–9. Signed by Christopher and Grace Lewis.

In Vol. XII, p 175, Christopher (3) and Isaac (6) Lewis, husbandmen both of Malden, sell to John Houghton of Lancaster, yeoman, 60 acres of Land in 2nd Div. upland and intervale of Mordecai Muckload (4] lying on Bard hill, being formerly the meadow lot of Thomas James. Also 80 acres in 2nd Div. part of which our honored father Wm. Lewis formerly purchased of Major Simon Willard. Dated May 13, 1698. Signed by Christopher Lewis and Isaac Lewis. Christopher and Grace Lewis had one daughter reported in N. E. H. & Gen. Reg. Vol. XI., p 49, Hannah as born Feb'y 21, 1713–4. This must be an error, as the following document will show. It is very poorly written in the records and it is not plain what some words are. This is the best to be made of it.

In Vol. XVI, p 344–5, Hannah Lewis, (501) daughter and Sole heir of Christopher Lewis, some land of said Lancaster. Said Lot of Attorney bearing date the 30th day of June, 1713, £100–0–0 Town Right nnd estate on said Lancaster Town Book being part of the eight that formerly belonged to William Lewis, as entered upon said Town recorded and of Rights belonging to Christopher Lewis at the time of his decease. Also the Third Division upland belonging to said Town Right to be laid out in any place within the Township of said Lancaster proper and free for said division, where the said John Houghton, his heirs or assigns shall see —— to take it up. I said Nicholas Rich and Grace, my wife in token of her giving up her right and also have by assigning up all her right of Dower in or to all Land formerly purchased of her husband namely Christopher Lewis, by said John Houghton. Dated 14th day of July, 1713. Nicholas Rich, his (X) mark, Grace Rich, her (X) mark and seal.

In connection with the above, p 344–5 Deed Houghton to Priest appears this: I the said Nicholas Rich do hereby acquit, exonerate, and forever discharge him the said John Houghton, his heirs, executors and assigns and in consideration as above said, I the said Nicholas Rich, together with Grace my now married wife and in virtue of a lott Attorney received from our daughter Hannah Lewis, daughter and sole heir of Christopher Lewis, some time of Lancaster. Dated June 30, 1713.

In Vol. XIII, p 312, Hannah Lewis daughter of Christopher Lewis, some time of Malden in the Co. of Middlesex, Dec'd, a minor in her 18th year of age, appeared in Court and did nominate and depute her good friend Mr. Samuel Green of said place, to be her lawful Guardian, and the said Samuel Green hath accepted said Trust and given bond in £100–0–0 for his fidelity in said Trust. Cambridge 20 July, 1713.

The Malden Records say that Christopher Lewis died Feb'y 8, 1703–4. They also say that Hannah was born Feb. 21, 1713–4, over 10 years after his death.

The above application for a Guardian says she was in her 18th year of age on 20th July, 1713. which would make her birth in 1695. Savage's Dic. says that Nicholas Rice lived on a farm rented of Gov. Bellingham in Rumney Marsh. From a receipt in the Archives of Mass., it may be Rice or Rich. No Rice ever lived in Malden according to the records and no Nicholas Rich appears although there is an old "Rich farm" that was occupied for many years by a family of that name. I am confident that if I could find the obituary notice of Old Deacon Isaac Rich, who was the last. I could show his descent from Nicholas Rich. This Rich farm bordered on others in Rumney Marsh.

CHAPTER LVI.

FROM ROANOKE, VA., EVENING WORLD.

In 1885, a chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution was organized in Roanoke city and chartered by the name of Margaret Lynn Lewis Chapter, in honor of the mother of General Andrew Lewis. Soon after this organization, it was determined to suitably mark the grave of General Lewis, and devote themselves to the erection of a monument to his memory.

To this end Colonel Thomas Lewis was directed by them to confer with the trustees of Salem Cemetery, and ask them to donate a suitable lot in it to which his remains might be removed, to which they readily consented and selected the center of a large circle in their cemetery (which was a part of General Lewis' farm at the time of his death). Acting on this donation of the trustees the chapter directed Colonel Lewis to disinter the remains and remove them to the spot donated.

Accordingly, on the second day of April, the long neglected grave was opened in the presence of William McCauley, Esq., of Salem, Virginia (who had long known the exact location) and Col. Lewis. His bones were found in a perfect state of preservation by the side of his youngest child, Charles, where as General William Preston said in a letter to his brother, Thomas Lewis of Rockingham county, "he buried them on September 29th, 1781, by the side of his young son, Charles, on his farm on Roanoke river."

His remains, together with his son Charles', were re-interred on the spot designated by the trustees at noon on Monday, the 5th of April, in the presence of the regent and a committee of ladies of the chapter and a few friends, with suitable religious service by the Rev. Dr. J. B. Taylor. There they will be cared for by the Margaret Lynn Lewis Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and they hope soon to erect a suitable monument to his memory.

A bill is being strongly urged before the Wisconsin Legislature which deserves the attention of Good Government Clubs in every part of the country. It is known as the Lewis Primary Election Bill, and is carefully framed to carry out the desire almost universally felt to take the selection of candidates out of the control of the politicians, and give it to the whole body of voters. The bill provides that primary elections shall take the place both of caucuses and nominating conventions. These primary elections must be held early in September preceding the general election, and be held at the same time and in the same booths.

Louisville, Ky., March 30—By the will of John Churchill, who died a week ago leaving an estate valued at $750,000. Col. M. Lewis Clark (v p 167, Vol. V) through its probation in the County Court yesterday, became owner of 46 acres of land in South Louisville.

The tract is worth about $100,000 and embraces the beautiful race course, Churchill Downs, where Col. Clark has officiated for so many years as presiding judge.

Boston, Mass., March 3.—Under the carpet in the room where Isaac H. Lewis, the Neponset hermit—who died a month ago—lived there have been found bonds, deeds of property, cash and securities, the total value of which is said to be between $50,000 and $100,000. A son, who is Secy. and Treas. of a R. R. Company in Chicago, will succeed to the estate.

Mr. Lewis's son-in-law is W. H. H. Moore of N. Y. City, President of the Atlantic Mutual Ins. Co. Mr. Moore's son, Lawyer W. Clifford Moore of 56 Pine-st., said that he had no knowledge of the finding of such property. He had charge of Mr. Lewis's affairs and visited Dorchester last week to settle them. He said that a bank book and some deeds of property that Mr. Lewis owned were found hidden near a desk in his library, but that the income of the property was just sufficient to support Mr. Lewis comfortably.

VALEDICTORY.

My retirement from the active list of the United States Navy, the 18th of this month, leads me to make a few remarks in regard to the service. It seems to me that twenty-eight years' connection with that service would authorize me to have certain very definite convictions about it, as from the standpoint of chaplain.

I remember with pleasure not only the courtesy and consideration of officers and the attachment of men, but also the attendance of them both in large numbers on my ministrations. I recall with gratitude the efficient help I have had in my work from them both. In the retrospect I am deeply convinced of the great possibilities of the good a chaplain can do, more particularly at sea, if he will be first manly and gentlemanly, and then faithful to the opportunities of his calling. I had eight years of pastoral work before I entered the Navy, and so can compare what I think have been the results of my ministry in civil life and in the naval service, and I can say from my heart, that if I had my life to live over, I would gladly go over again my Navy life. JOHN K. LEWIS, Chaplain, U. S. N.

Index Number.

In response to many demands an attempt has been made to give a subject index of the Lewis Families so far published in LEWISIANA. Any one who will take the trouble to count the names in any of the larger Books will readily see that an alphabetical index is out of the question, as it would take several issues to complete it. Even the index here attempted has involved far more labor than was anticipated and will require much more space than was intended for it. In it will be found the names of the first four generations (when known) of each family. The stars denote that names of the children are unknown. If its use will save half the time it has taken to prepare it the editor will not have labored in vain.
